89th YEAR No. 28 ★★★ VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1972 10 CENTS DAILY, 20 CENTS SATURDAY

ABOUT THAT RAIN...

Sunny Victoria is getting a rainy reputation.

Gonzales weather officials reported a total rainfall so far this month of .54 inches — normal for the entire month is .57.

And counting June's rain, the total is boosted to 1.47 inches. Last month Victoria was blessed with 9.3 inches, while the normal is 5.8.

Victoria airport weather officials predict sunshine by Friday, saying an "improving trend should begin Thursday."

Thursday should look better, they said, with morning showers and a cloudy afternoon dropping "the odd rainfall."

Although July began well, with sunshine and higher-than-normal temperatures for the first four days, rain and lower-than-normal temperatures, which averaged about 55 degrees, took over on day 5.

Convention Gives Nod To McGovern Platform

MIAMI BEACH — The Democratic national convention gave Senator George McGovern today the kind of platform he sought, rebuffing a personal plea by Gov. George Wallace from his wheelchair for a strikingly different party document.

Reflecting in general the views of the man whose nomination now is assured, the platform calls for immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, closing of tax loopholes, replacing the welfare system with income grants and recognition of busing as one means of achieving quality education.

The convention gave the Alabama governor, crippled by a gunman's bullets, a two-minute ovation when he was wheeled to the podium.

It listened to his argument that it should appeal to the "75 to 80 per cent of the American people who are against senseless, asinine busing of 'school children,'" and, in other respects as well, largely rewrite the draft platform.

But later it shouted down, one by one, the Wallace proposals.

An even clearer demonstration of McGovern power came when the convention defated a number of amendments, with broad-based support, but which so the candidate's emissaries said would be embarrassing in the campaign.

These included proposed planks favoring liberal abortion policies, non-discrimination against homosexuals, and major goals of the National Welfare Rights Organization—a $6,500 income guarantee for a family of four, rollback of rents, government takeover and repair of substandard housing.

Similarly defeated was a call for repealing the income-tax code and substituting a system of lower tax rates, personal credits, but no deductions.

McGovern remained out of public view today, writing an acceptance speech and studying a small list of vice-presidential possibilities headed by Edward M. Kennedy.

But the Massachusetts senator has disavowed any interest in running on the national ticket this year and if he does reject the expected offer, McGovern will turn to a list believed to contain no more than five names, including a labor leader, a governor and at least two senators.

However, the Massachusetts senator never has said absolutely that he would not accept the No. 2 spot on the ticket.

He said he would consider a run if convinced that was the only way President Nixon could be beaten.

Pelting Rain, Armed Soldiers Cool Irish Tempers at Parade

BELFAST (Reuter) — Protestants paraded with banging drums and flapping banners in the traditional Orange Day marches throughout Northern Ireland today amid lively fears of communal conflict.

The marches set off in an atmosphere charged by three more killings during the night. One of the victims was a Protestant youth shot down on a street in Portadown, 25 miles outside Belfast, and there was apprehension of a revenge blow by the Protestant para-military Ulster Defence Association.

As the marchers streamed through the heart of Belfast under a steady rain, most of the city's Roman Catholic minority remained in their own district.

Some 17,000 British soldiers backed by 8,000 police and militia men stood guard in case of an assault on the marchers by the Roman Catholic-based Irish Republican Army.

In the present high state of tension authorities believed such an assault could blow up into full-scale communal conflict.

At several points in Belfast, groups of blue-jacketed club-carrying young men could be seen on the fringes of the procession. They described themselves as UDA commandos.

The rain doused some of the excitement customary on the Orange Day parades which are held to celebrate a triumph of Protestant arms in 1690 when Roman Catholic King James II was beaten by William of Orange at the Battle of Boyne.

As the marchers trudged through town, plastic raincoats obscured the dark coats and orange flashes which are a uniform of the Orange order. Rain dripped off bowler hats — another uniform requirement — and sodden banners hung heavy on their poles.

But the bandsmen pounded out Protestant tunes with gusto all along the five-mile march to a rallying point at Enderderry just outside Belfast.

Rains Hit W. Van

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Several houses were evacuated and the Upper Levels Highway between here andHorseshoe Bay was closed today as more than three inches of rain overnight washed down rocks and mud from slopes above the road.

Basements and carports flooded and drainage systems backed up on streets just below the highway, and a weather office spokesman warned there was more rain to come.

July records for rainfall were set overnight at Vancouver and Abbotsford in the lower mainland and at Tofino and other western Vancouver Island centres. (See also Page 3).

Water spilled over Cleveland Dam in North Vancouver and observers said the Capilano River was the highest they had ever seen it.

Norm Paquette of West Vancouver said water poured down his street "like a river."

"My driveway has tons of debris on it," he said. "The water is carrying rocks and mud. Some of those rocks must be three feet wide."

Cleveland Dam gauges recorded 3.26 inches of rain between 4 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. today, a record for July.

At Vancouver International Airport, 1.53 inches of rain were recorded in the 24 hours to 8 a.m. today compared with the previous July 24-hour record of 1.45 inches. Average rainfall for the whole month of July is 1.17 inches.

Other July 24-hour records were set in Abbotsford, where 1.4 inches of rain fell, at Tofino, which recorded 4.45 inches, at Estevan Point with 4.06 inches and at Spring Island, where 2.83 inches of rain fell.

The weather office says a high-altitude flow of westerly winds is carrying weather systems across the Pacific from southern Japan. The systems are travelling in a straight line to beat down on the coast one after the other.

NET SCOOPS STRAY FISH

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — An escaped prisoner from Collins Bay penitentiary was captured today when he walked into an intense search area 15 miles west of here where police were looking for nine of 14 prisoners who escaped from the maximum-security Millhaven prison Monday night.

Police said John Singleton, 30, left a labor gang Tuesday morning, but was caught today when he was spotted walking along CNR tracks two miles north of Millhaven.

Singleton was serving three years for fraud and parole revocation.

Hospital Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Despite a provincial law that forbids hospital workers to strike, the Canadian Union of General Employees, representing about 650 non-medical workers at Toronto Western Hospital, broke off contract talks today and set up picket lines.

Boyd McAulay, executive director of Toronto Western — said attempts will be made to transfer some of the 700 patients. Supervisory staff and some workers who did not strike would try to carry on with hospital duties.

The union represents kitchen staff, cleaners, nursing assistants and male orderlies.

Under the Ontario Hospital Disputes Act, it is illegal for hospital workers to strike and penalties can reach $1,000 a day for individuals and $10,000 a day for the union.

It is the second hospital strike in Toronto in two weeks. Workers at St. Joseph's Hospital staged a 10½-hour walkout June 28. A contract has since been signed and there were no charges against the workers.

New Talks Begin In IWA Conflict

Representatives of both sides in the coast woodworking industry contract dispute met today in Vancouver.

The move followed a decision by member companies of Forest Industrial Relations to postpone a ratification vote on a new contract with the International Woodworkers of America until after a number of local issues are resolved.

These local issues, involving 2,500 of the 28,000 coast loggers and millworkers, include a variety of matters, such as additional job rates, longshoring agreements and an end of piece-rates in at least one shingle mill, at individual companies.

John Billings, president of the Forest Industrial Relations, said terms and conditions of the tentative general agreement with the IWA "appeared to be acceptable" to the 115 companies FIR represents.

"However, because of a number of the operations had been pulled out of master negotiations by the International Woodworkers of America for the settlement of local issues, the industry representatives decided to postpone a formal ratification vote today," he said Tuesday.

Earlier, the IWA accepted the proposed settlement by 53 per cent with roughly half the members not voting. Picket lines, however, will remain in effect until the industry ratifies the new agreement. The new contract includes a wage increase of 73 cents an hour over two years plus fringe benefits. Base rate was $3.72.

This morning's meeting was requested by FIR.

LOUSY MUSICIAN BUT FINE BANDIT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It was a crazy mixed-up robbery, complete with musical accompaniment and a quick shuffle, but the robber had the last laugh.

Police suspect the robber capped off a string of four holdups in Hollywood and four in the San Fernando Valley all in one night — by sticking up the Studio City bar shortly after midnight Tuesday.

After forcing nine customers to lie on the floor, the bandit took over the bass drum, accompanying the regular entertainment, an organist.

One of the customers jumped up and ran out while the robber was busy with his bass. The bandit chased him and fired three shots, all of which missed.

Waiting for him outside was the robber, who took $290 and vanished again.

$4 B. Gas Contract

Doug Lougheed, vice-president and general manager, producing, confirmed Wednesday that a gas-purchase contract had been signed with Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line of Detroit, and Natural Gas Pipeline of Chicago.

Killer Floods Rake Much of Japan

TOKYO (Reuter) — Floods swept unchecked through many Japanese towns today under the continuous battering of rainstorms that have caused at least 243 deaths, with other 67 persons missing in the last week.

Near Tokyo, a hot-spring resort was destroyed by floodwaters, but most of some 450 residents fled to safety in surrounding hills as their homes disappeared beneath swirling floodwaters.

BUMPER CROP

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An experimental safety car devised by UCLA engineering student Dan Bell has bumpers filled with an edible material that cushions the impact of crashes.

Bell says the material is cheap, light, porous, readily available, requires no unusual skills to process, will withstand a 5-mile-per-hour crash without damage—and besides, in an emergency, can be eaten.

The wonder material? Popcorn.

Spassky, Fischer and referee Schmid

Fischer Concedes

REYKJAVIK (AP) — World champion Boris Spassky won the first game today in his 24-game, $300,000 world title chess series against Bobby Fischer of the United States.

Fischer, in a hopeless position, resigned. He stood up, folded his score sheet and walked out of the Reykjavik Sports Palace.

The decision confirmed the judgment of the experts who considered Fischer was in a difficult position when the game was adjourned after 40 moves Tuesday night. The 40 moves were made in four hours and 34 minutes of play.

The victory gave Spassky a 1-0 lead in the 24-game match and an important psychological advantage. Fischer has never beaten Spassky. His winless streak against the Russian now stands at six games.

After the overnight adjournment, the game was resumed this afternoon.

Spassky's 41st move was written on a slip of paper, put in a sealed envelope at the close of play Tuesday night and given to chief referee Lothar Schmid of West Germany. Schmid ceremoniously opened the envelope today and made Spassky's move.

The two competitors, their seconds and chess enthusiasts throughout the world spent part of the overnight break analysing possibilities for the 11 pieces remaining on the green-and-white chessboard in Reykjavik's sports hall: king and five pawns for Fischer; king, bishop and three pawns for Spassky.

The match had appeared headed for a draw until Fischer tried to seize the initiative on his 29th move.

The lanky challenger galloped his bishop down a long black diagonal to snatch an unprotected pawn Spassky had offered. A few moves later the bishop was trapped and lost in exchange for two pawns.

Analyzing the game for The Associated Press, international grandmaster Isaac Kashdan termed Fischer's move "a rare miscalculation by the American genius."

IT'S JUST ONE OF THOSE DAYS IN ROME

ROME (UPI) — Today was one of those days for Romans: No gasoline, no buses, no milk and, for some of them, no telephones.

Some newspapers did not publish and some monuments were closed to visitors.

The city's 2,000 gasoline distributors began a 24-hour strike at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in protest against an order by the prefect of Rome requiring half of them to stay open Sundays.

The distributors have ignored the order for the past few Sundays, keeping open only one gas station in every four.

The prefect reacted by threatening to fine violators. The strike was announced in advance and most motorists filled up before it began.

Bus and streetcar workers in Rome and the surrounding Lazio region called a five-hour strike beginning at 9:30 a.m. today, demanding a reform of the transportation system and the hiring of additional personnel.

A 24-hour strike in the municipal milk processing centre left Romans dependent on insufficient supplies from private milk firms.

Telephones in some homes were still dead because of a fire touched off in a telephone exchange five days ago by the explosion of a workman's blowtorch. The blackout originally involved 7,000 telephones but most lines had been restored by Tuesday night.

Newspaper publishers, printers and newsmen were still locked in a nation-wide dispute over the decision of most publishers to discontinue Monday editions in order to save money.

Weeds and bureaucratic slowness were blamed for another mishap, the closing of four archeological sites at the peak of the tourist season.

The city of Rome announced last weekend it was closing the forum of Augustus, Forum of Trajan, Marketplace of Trajan and tombs of the scipios "for urgent maintenance work."

City officials said weeds growing in cracks of ancient walls threatened to cause stones to tumble down on visitors. They said this was because bureaucratic snags delayed a new contract with a maintenance firm after the old one expired. They estimated the weeding-out work would take at least one month.

40 South Viets Killed on Copter

Times News Services

Forty South Vietnamese marines and two Americans were killed when a U.S. helicopter was shot down by North Vietnamese gunners north of Quang Tri City, military sources said today.

The helicopter was part of a United States fleet carrying a battalion of Vietnamese marines into North Vietnamese-held territory Tuesday.

The airlift met heavy North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire and the marines encountered stiff fighting immediately after they landed.

Nearly one-quarter of the 600 troops dropped were killed, wounded or missing in addition to the 40 killed in the helicopter crash, the sources said.

Two other helicopters which came from U.S. carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin were hit but landed safely behind government lines.

Heavy fighting was reported on three sides of Quang Tri today as tank-led North Vietnamese forces for the sixth straight day blocked a government drive to recapture the provincial capital.

Several battalions of South Vietnamese paratroops on the edges of Quang Tri were being pounded by long-range North Vietnamese artillery fire.

New Feelers Mooted In Building Dispute

Representatives of both sides in the construction industry dispute were to hold an exploratory meeting today to see if a resumption of negotiations can be worked out.

Word of the Vancouver meeting became known this morning, although neither side made any immediate announcement.

Talks between Construction Labor Relations Association and six unions without new contracts broke down last weekend. Each side blamed the other.

Twelve unions have reached new agreements, but a full return to work has not been possible despite a government back-to-work order issued under provisions of the Mediation Commission Act.

Three constructions unions were successful Tuesday in having Mr. Justice W. R. McIntyre of B.C. Supreme Court quash search warrants used by RCMP to raid union offices for possible evidence they have ignored a government order.

The successful applicants were Local 344 of the electrical workers, Local 919 of the plasters and cement masons and Local 405 of the heat and frost insulators.

Mr. Justice McIntyre reserved decision on a similar application by the Carpenters Union to quash search warrants used in raids on its offices in Vancouver, Nanaimo, Prince George, Prince Rupert, Victoria, Cranbrook, Kamloops and New Westminster.

24-Hour Cash Plan Extended

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce today introduced a new 24-hour cash system to the Montreal area, the second step in a Canada-wide program launched by the bank after a successful two-year testing of automated cash dispensers at 10 locations in Toronto.

Frank Kearney, assistant general manager for the Quebec region, said equipment being installed in Montreal is simpler and more efficient than that used in Toronto.

Later this year, he said, the original 10 machines in Toronto will be replaced and 15 new locations will be added. The system will be introduced to Vancouver this autumn with 10 dispensers.

The cash dispensers are accessible at all times, said Kearney, not only to customers who may suddenly need money at night or on the weekend but also for those who regularly find it difficult to get to a branch during normal banking hours.

A special card enables the customer to draw out amounts of $30 from the dispenser. A maximum of 10 withdrawals can be made each week, and 200 withdrawals during the life of the card.

the weather

Autumn-like weather continues to plague B.C. residents as several centres throughout the southern sections of the province recorded low maximum temperatures yesterday.

In addition to Victoria, Vancouver, Nanaimo, Tofino, Kamloops, Lytton and Revelstoke also shattered low maximum temperature records for the day. Along with being one of the coolest Julys on record it is also becoming one of the wettest. The total rainfall so far this month has exceeded the average monthly amounts at several locations along the south coast including Vancouver, Victoria and Tofino. Tofino also set a new 24-hour rainfall record of 3.87 inches surpassing the previous mark set in 1964 by more than 1¼ inches. Estevan Point and Spring Island also established new 24-hour precipitation amounts o f3.75 and 2.47 inches respectively.

There is little hope for relief during the next 24 hours as the series of Pacific disturbances continue to strike the coast. Rain will be widespread along the southern coastal sections and rather intermittent throughout the interior. Shower activity can be expected over northern sections today. Thursday however shows a good chance of improvement over all areas as a change in the current pattern takes place.

Jumbo Ferry Conversion Nears Tender Call

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The provincial government is expected to call tenders soon for the conversion of the B.C. Ferries' Queen of Burnaby into the fleet's first jumbo ferry.

An official silence has been clamped on the work done to date by the Victoria company of Case Existological Laboratories Ltd.

A spokesman of the firm said it has been ordered not to reveal any information unless given permission by the B.C. Ferries' operations department. The company has been working on conversion plans for the ferry.

But it is known that the ferry has been inspected by Ottawa representatives of the Canadian Steamship Inspectors and found to be suitable for the conversion.

Like the other four ferries "stretched" before her, she will have an 84-foot midsection added.

In addition, however, she will have an extra deck added that will be usely solely for car storage. This gives her a capacity for 300 cars, 100 more than those ferries converted to date.

The main deck will be completely utilized for catering services, having a large cafeteriaI and a dining room, the galleys and administrative space being located in the centre.

The Queen of Burnaby will be used on the run between Nanaimo's Departure Bay and Horseshoe Bay on the mainland.

Because of her unusually high car-carrying capacity, the Queen of Burnaby will require increased space and facilities at the two terminals.

Nanaimo mayor and Socred MLA Frank Ney today confirmed that action on the Departure Bay terminal can be expected this year.

"I sent a letter to the minister of highways (W. D. Black) two weeks ago," Ney said, "asking that it be borne in mind that whatever changes are made don't interfere with the privacy of the residential area close by and the environment."

"The minister replied that he had advised his engineers to keep this in mind. The very fact that he has acted so promptly is an indication that something is cooking."

Ney also said that he had been assured that "jumbo-ization" of the Queen of Burnaby will begin this year.

He noted that modernization of the Horseshoe Bay facilities had already been done.

It was announced earlier this year that two jumbo ferries would be assigned to the Nanaimo-West Vancouver run. The other ferry to be converted is the Queen of Nanaimo.

SOME TOURISTS LIKE THE RAIN

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

When you only have a week of vacation and it buckets down rain — what do you do?

Don and Debbie Cross are going home.

"It looks very wet."

Elsewhere the tourist industry was at a crossroad as the rains continued to pelt down.

Mike Heppell of the Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau said that there was a slight dip in the number of tourists at the booth Tuesday but was full of his usual optimism.

"The rain won't last for ever," he said. "Besides it's an ill wind that blows nobody good. With the rain, there are fewer people camping and more in hotels and motels.

"There are fewer people at the beaches and more shopping in stores.

"We are getting a lot of inquiries here asking why we don't do something about the weather.

"Some of the tourists seem to like it. I saw some people dancing around in the rain yesterday. They were from Arizona, where they only get two inches of rain a year. It's a real novelty for them."

boat from Seattle were a bit apprehensive this morning about the continuing rain.

"The crowds seem to be holding all right yesterday but we don't know what it will be like today and the rest of the week if the rain continues. We are still carrying the usual load of about 1,000 people so far."

One tourist who decided to tough it out is Joseph Gibson of Los Angeles.

"I've been sitting in my motel room reading the papers — all the papers," he said, pointing to a huge stack in the corner.

"I'm retired and I'm eventually going to go over to Vancouver to visit my daughter there but I'm looking around here for the week mostly driving around. Possible clearing by Friday.

"Wet? Sure it's wet here. Too wet! But Los Angeles is too dry. Never rains for six months of the year down there. A real fire hazard.

"You know, I get tired of fighting the traffic jams down there. I might like to move up here, despite the rain."

Meanwhile, the weather office gave only a glimmer of hope to the tourist industry.

Reserve Protects Oaks

The picturesque Garry Oak, declining due to urbanization and man's indifference, has been given some protection to preserve it in its natural habitat.

The B.C. government has set aside an ecological reserve of oaks on a 160-acre parcel of land adjoining Maxwell Park on Salt Spring Island.

The trees, some with trunks more than 25 inches in diameter, will be permitted to grow undisturbed with associated plants.

The ecological reserve is one of 11 established since May 1971, according to David Borthwick, deputy minister of lands.

"We now have 39 ecological reserves in scattered parts of the province," he said. "We hope to have 100 by 1975."

Ecological reserves should not be confused with parks or wildlife management areas. It is land reserved to protect outstanding samples of areas where natural processes are to be allowed to proceed undisturbed for future study by biologists, foresters and soil specialists.

Some reserves have also been established to protect rare and endangered native plants or animals in their natural habitat. For example, Solander Island, off Cape Cook, Vancouver Island, is reserved only to protect the marine and bird life.

The Salt Spring Island ecological reserve is timely as there is no protected natural grove of Garry Oaks on south Vancouver Island. The species is limited in range. It is chiefly confined to the Saanich Peninsula and the Gulf Islands.

Borthwick said another ecological reserve has been established at Takla Lake, 150 miles northwest of Prince George, because it is the most northern area where Douglas fir is found. The reserve, comprising 650 acres, was suggested by the B.C. Forest Service.

At Osoyoos Lake in the interior 10 acres of desert land was set aside as an ecological reserve.

The reason: undisturbed desert land is becoming rare in B.C., and already some plants and animals adapted to arid areas are near extinction.

What Dose Waldo Know?

Does Industrial Development Minister Waldo Skillings know something Premier Bennett doesn't know?

At a press conference Tuesday Skillings declared suddenly, while discussing another topic, that there will be an election called "momentarily."

But the premier said later he hasn't heard about that.

Skillings was asked at the press conference if his department was planning to send a trade mission to China.

"I can't make any statement at this time because as you know there is going to be an election momentarily . . . and after the election is over more statements will be made."

Premier Bennett was called at his Kelowna home a few hours later and told of Skillings' statement.

"I am sure the minister doesn't know when the election will be called because I don't know."

Other political leaders are predicting that Skillings is not far off the mark. Most of the money is on a late August date, which would mean the announcemnet must come before too long.

Depending on how holidays fall, there must be from 35 to 38 days between the time the election writ is issued and polling day.

Elections have in the past 20 years been called about every three years, which would make 1972 a likely voting year. The last election was August 27, 1969.

Cost Cuts CTF Protests

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Provincial governments are undermining the economic position of teachers throughout the country, say directors of the Canadian Teachers' Federation.

In a report to the federation's annual meeting here this week, the CTF board warns that hard-won rights of collective bargaining are being reduced as governments cut back on education costs.

Split Down the Middle

This week's vote of the International Woodworkers of America serves less to assure resumption of work in the forest industries than it does to reveal the deep division within the union and discord within the ranks. Less than half those entitled to vote cast ballots. A little more than half of those who did voted for the package compiled by the union and management negotiators. And while this tortured result was being produced, clear indications were given that fallers, themselves members of the IWA, would not be cutting enough trees to keep their brother unionists busy.

The options defined by leaders of different locals in the IWA were widely divergent. Those who participated in the negotiations advocated acceptance of what they called the best deal ever offered to the union. Those championing rejection urged a tougher stand on the basis that the union had never been in a stronger bargaining position and should demand more. The conflict was further complicated in some instances by the rank and file voting against the recommendation of their own local leaders.

The outcome of the vote, with management also delaying ratification, provides scant hope of stability, either in the industrial operation or in the union itself.

The fact that half the union membership did not vote furnishes its own commentary. Abstention has been explained in some quarters by the assertion that a number of men, considering the strike period opportune for holidays, were absent from the areas in which they could vote when the ballot was taken — an interesting assessment of priorities. It could also be interpreted as an indication of dissatisfaction not solely with the question placed before the membership, nor with the terms hammered out, but with the manner in which the union was functioning.

Whatever the cause, the failure to vote indicates a union whose house is in disarray.

Should the fallers take it upon themselves to starve the industry and their brothers of the material which provides jobs, they achieve an unenviable position in the symbolic fraternity of labor. Claiming top pay in the richer timberlands of British Columbia, they reject the prospect of working on a daily rate basis, preferring, it seems, to keep their fellow members unemployed rather than adopt an income arrangement applied to most other unionists in the industry.

In the meantime, rain in various parts of British Columbia holds back the fire season, making it feasible to work in the woods without inviting disaster by fire. But the weather could change, the forest could dry out and operations could be suspended for some time — depending on climatic conditions. It could be a long stretch between pay cheques.

No Return to Lynch Law

No sensible person wastes sympathy on the modern aircraft hijacker. He is a pariah whose terrorism threatens the lives of innocent people. He deals in violence which begets more violence, as events of recent date have shown. But when any responsible member of society suggests, as did the Los Angeles police chief, that hijackers be hanged, after the re-introduction of captial punishment, following trial in a portable courtroom from portable gallows — after "due process of law" — at the airport, reaction to the skyjacker has reached an unsupportable extreme.

The police chief's proposal, no matter how it may be clothed with the verbalization of "due process", means a return to lynch law. Such an attitude lends point to the remarks of the bereaved son of Canadian Stanley Carter, slain by a hijacker's bullet when FBI agents stormed the plane and killed the air pirates. "Apparently," said the son, "the American people are accustomed enough to violence to accept the killings. I am in total and complete disagreement with what happened."

Mr. Carter's son said further that he would have had no "hard feelings towards the FBI" if it had been trying to protect lives "but the circumstances clearly indicated they were out to kill the hijackers." The FBI, seeking to justify its actions, speaks of saving lives by killing air pirates. Mr. Benjamin Davis, chief of the U.S. government's anti-hijacking program and the assistant secretary of transportation, says: "I believe these tough new tactics are actually saving the lives of passengers."

It should be possible for authorities to recognize that people who are mentally disturbed can be talked to and dissuaded from rashness and folly. Such methods have worked on at least two recent occasions when the RCMP used peaceful persuasion to deter such men; similar tactics worked the day after Mr. Carter's death at an airport near San Francisco.

An effective method of handling hijackers must be found — perhaps several, incorporating among them the RCMP techniques. But "gang-buster" action which claims innocent lives is not adequate.

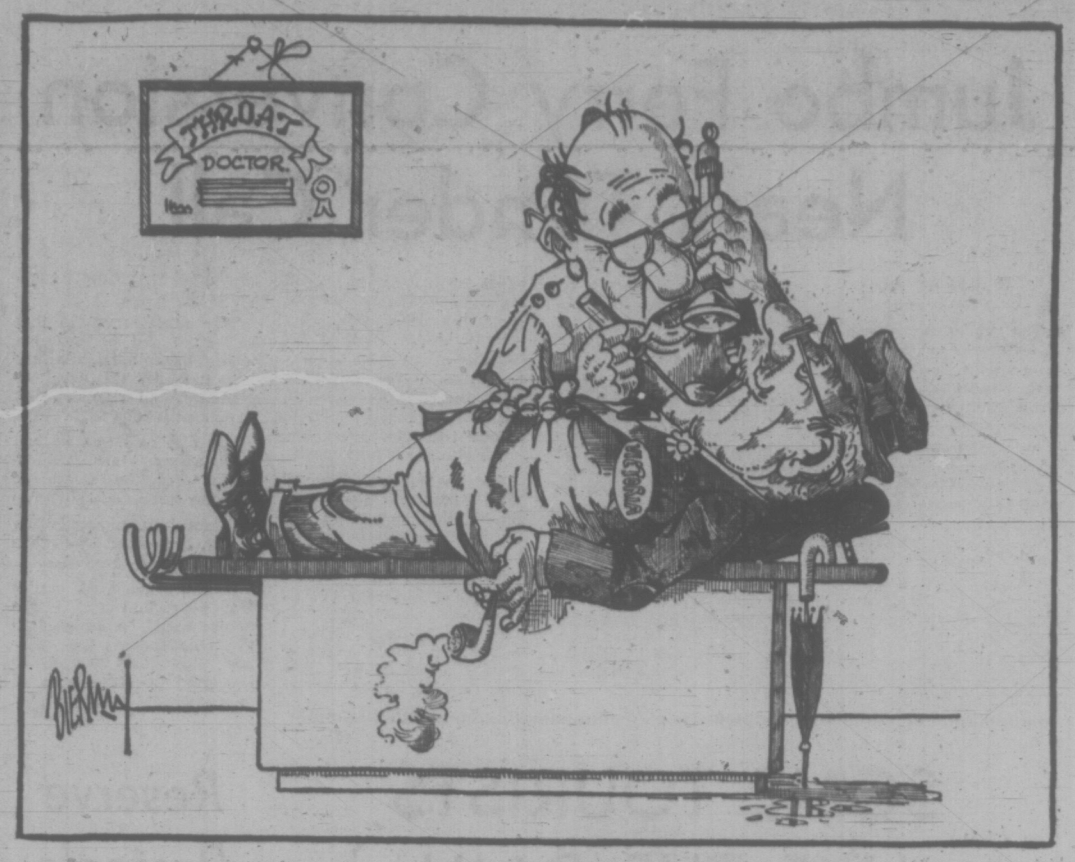
Laying the Ghost

It is not surprising that a state court judgment recently ordered the disbanding of a New York City firm specializing in ghost-writing term papers for college and university students. Any surprise emerges from the fact that this is the first such court case and judgment in the United States.

Term papers are required from students to indicate what the student has achieved. Obviously they fail in that purpose when the finished product represents only the student's ability to meet the price of the merchandise.

Periodically the academic calm of higher education is shattered by flagrant violation of rules and conventions strictly within the limits of scholarship. Dishonesty is exposed. Some individual receives credit for another's efforts — and the deception is discovered and made public.

It has been no secret, of course, that commercial interests have been in the term-paper writing business and similar enterprises — not only in New York. Standards have been reduced and cheapened by such subterfuges. Now one court in New York has called a halt to the traffic in one instance. It sets a usable precedent.



"You're right . . . they did shove the Reid Centre down there."

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Economics vs Human Nature

Because it judges human affairs from an economic point of view (in print anyhow), and suffers the crushing burden of its own infallibility, The Economist of London is deeply alarmed by the current state of British society. Having examined Britain's sloppy business methods, wildly inflated prices, sick currency and disappointing government, The Economist concludes that "the biggest obstacle to a change in this country is the one which the politicians can least acknowledge; it is the inertia of the British public."

Canadians, who generally admire Britain though knowing little about it, are not equipped or entitled, like The Economist, to make such harsh judgments — especially when Canada's economic management is nothing to boast about these days.

Contrasts

After all, Britain occupies a small, crowded island, with minor physical resources, and yet has created one of the world's finest civilizations. Canada is the second largest and, per capita, the richest nation on earth and yet it has not solved even the temporary riddle of inflation and unemployment, much less the problem of its cultural duality. In the popular sport of deploring Britain's mismanagement it is not for us to hurl the first stone.

Besides, the real problem of both nations and, indeed, all the Western nations, while differing in detail, is basically the same. As The Economist seems to realize, with somewhat comic horror, it is not economic but human. Men, being men and not machines or statistics, refuse to obey economic laws and are now paying a high price for their disobedience. They try to have their cake and eat it, which is impossible but quite natural to our queer species.

Thus, the British people, for instance, demand a standard of consumption which can come only from a highly efficient economic apparatus, from brutal competition and hard work, but they also cling to their old and pleasant ways, their lovely countryside, their leisure, long weekends and jolly evenings in the pub. They want it both ways and, falling between two stools, watch the Europeans and the Japanese surge ahead of them in the pursuit of wealth, if not of happiness.

Somewhere down the road a choice must be made in all nations — not necessarily guns or butter, as in wartime, but a reasonable, attainable style of life or a dog-eat-dog struggle in which all the dogs will finally be eaten, along with the planet. Of course, that choice will not be made easily, clearly or soon. It will vary, in time, method and wisdom, from nation to nation, if it can be made voluntarily at all, and not enforced by hunger, plague or other catastrophe.

In the meantime most of the politicians in the democracies pretend that the choice can be avoided, that all men can have unlimited material wealth and unlimited happiness, too, if only the right government is elected, the right legislation passed and the economic machine perfected.

This age-old assumption has been shattered, within the last five years, by the discovery that our planet does not contain the necessary ingredients and already is being ravaged, and poisoned, by our excessive demands upon a finite, fragile and totally interdependent structure.

Nevertheless, the promise of ever-increasing affluence, and ever-decreasing labor in its production, is still the grand talisman, fetish and big lie of politics under elected or non-elected governments everywhere. And any man who dares to mention the contrary facts now measurable and rapidly closing in on us, is usually denounced as an opponent of progress, a black reactionary or, at best, a nut.

Britain looks particularly interesting at the moment because there the conflicting forces of economics and human nature come to sharp focus and compel an early choice. So also is Japan, because it has already chosen economics at the cost of other values, including livable environment.

Universal Dilemma

By the size of their cramped geography and lack of raw resources these great island states present two vivid microcosms of mankind's universal dilemma—a preview, so to speak, of the future confronting us all at some point.

With full respect for the infallible Economist, a layman may suspect in his ignorance that such problems are not mainly economic and will not be solved by any improvement in the productive machine of Britain or any other nation. They are not political, either, if politics mean only the passage of laws and regulations.

Instead, they are philosophical, ethical and psychological (you can choose your own adjective) and will be solved, if they can be solved, only by human creatures coming to terms, at last, with a creaturehood far larger than themselves and a planet far smaller than they used to think.

The sudden emergence of that fact is surely the most important event in man's five millennia of civilization; for, if he fails to master it, civilization will be remembered later on, if anyone is around to remember, as a momentary flash, a very brief candle in the endless dark.

C. L. SULZBERGER

In Place of Historic Hatreds

LONDON — Nobody here wants Ireland to feature at the centre of British politics, as it has had a habit of doing for more than a century. Much hope was therefore placed in the uneasy truce established in the North — and now perhaps crumbling. The dream persists that despite violations and bluster, the tragic situation will simmer down and that sinister figure, the gunman, will move offstage.

Unfortunately the Irish tend to concentrate more on the past than on the future. Annually there are public parades for the Protestant victory at the Boyne in 1690, apprentice boy marches honoring the Londonderry Protestant revolt in 1688, Catholic celebrations of the 1916 Dublin Easter uprising.

Ireland, which is one geographical entity although often a political anarchy, embraces many historical trends. Today it is an ugly hangover of Europe's 17th century religious wars. It is also a clan war between the indigenous Catholics and the Scottish Puritan immigrants long established in the North. It is the only war in NATO's area since Algeria. Communism teaches that Ireland's is the first "national liberation movement."

Long Trouble

The mixture of these forces, when applied to the vigorous Irish, has produced a long history of trouble punctuated by catastrophe. One result has been that Northern Ireland has the lowest living standards in the United Kingdom, while southern Ireland's are still lower. When, a half century ago, Lloyd George tried to end Britain's explosive Irish question, partition resulted and in some senses things became worse.

During their 50 years of responsibility for Northern Ireland alone, the British saturated the place with legislation, but neither equality nor happiness was achieved. The autonomous local government installed at Belfast's Stormont Castle and including a prime minister, cabinet and parliament, proved incapable and unreal. The Protestant majority established what became permanent one-party government and decreed second-class citizenship for the Catholic minority.

Discontent encouraged the gunners. For three years there has been a mini-civil war which one still prays is nearing its end. London found its only recourse was to install, with Parliament's approval, what is tantamount to benevolent dictatorship in the North in order to stop the rot. Its direct administration accelerated anti-discrimination reforms designed to give Catholics political, social and economic equality.

Three months ago the Stormont apparatus was suspended for a year and there is little thought that it will ever be recreated. The complex of prime minister, cabinet and parliament for Northern Ireland proved unworkable for a population of only 1.5 million dominated by a Protestant political monolith.

IRA MEMBER

The pattern of British official thought now discernible favors some interim arrangment that might administer local needs for an extended period prior to an ultimate solution approved by the people of both Irelands. There is already a tendency to grant more local responsibility in other parts of the United Kingdom, like Scotland.

If the population of the North finally decides that murder and burning are not acceptable forms of political expression, a receptive situation may develop. Some mothers of IRA fighters, some of the IRA prisoners released from internment, and some parish priests have recently sought to tranquilize things and divide the Catholic masses from the extremists. But Protestant bully boys wax.

Common Market Influence

One long-range belief is that when both Britain and the Irish Republic join the Common Market early next year, the two Irelands will draw closer together. Southern living standards would slowly rise toward the Northern level and, once this is accomplished, the fear of a saner political relationship to succeed partition might subside.

But there is a long, long road to travel. Britain has learned over the decades how slowly events move in Ireland. There has always been talk here of the day — still far off — when there might be a United Ireland with a national parliament in Dublin, a provincial parliament in Belfast, guarantees to the Protestant minority of such a state and secularization of the constitution.

Yet at this jittery stage, when in the wake of wholesale violence, murders resume and daily television pictures still show masked thugs parading the streets of the North, or raising new barricades, no one wishes to make predictions on the date or shape of permanent settlement. The prior necessity is to get Ireland off the front pages and out of politics. Britain desperately needs to turn to quintessential problems — like the pound or Europe.

Some Other Facts

Mayor Elford's letter concerning the Oak Bay Swap is well headed "Some of the Facts." Perhaps the public might like a few more.

Prior to 1969, the owners of the Riding Academy applied to the Oak Bay council to have their property rezoned for development since they could foresee having to dispose of it. They were informed that there would be no rezoning since the property was destined for "public use" and could not be sold to any agency except the Corporation of Oak Bay. Faced with expropriation the directors of the Riding Academy sold a million dollar property for $112,000. These facts were admitted by Mrs. Elford herself in front of about 600 people in the Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium, at a public hearing of the Council's proposals to rezone for development.

Having secured the property for "public use" (whatever that means to Mrs. Elford) the council then proceeded, in the face of strong opposition from the public, to rezone public property, for private development and place a price tag on it of $1,300,000. Somehow public use and ethical business practice seem to have become rather mixed up at this point. It often happens where public agencies and profits are concerned. This rezoning was attacked in court but the objection was overruled by the judge.

Mrs. Elford makes much of the Capital Regional Planning board recommendations about the property. She conveniently does not mention a more independent survey made by a Vancouver firm (paid for by Oak Bay taxpayers) which suggests that a development of the Farmer Construction type would be a complete disaster and that it would really be much better to leave the property alone for at least ten years. This survey also contained a proposal for a low rise development and was reported in the Victoria papers recently.

If, as many believe, the Farmer proposals are improper for this controversial property, one section of Oak Bay will pay a high environmental price so that others can "get something for nothing." This point was highlighted by the Oak Bay aldermen who voted the Farmer proposal down.

Mrs. Elford is probably correct when she says that the Oak Bay taxpayers are capable of making a decision when they are in possession of the facts. The Mayor's letter does not make a very good start. —H. E. F. Makovski, 3539 Plymouth.

Digging Our Graves

Who is draining the life blood of North American society? Who has perverted patriotism into a "dirty word" while discrediting our institutions, traditions and law enforcement agencies? Who has encouraged drugs, sloth and revolution among the youth? Who synchronizes the dates, targets of our continuing demonstrations, confrontations and riots throughout the free world? Who fosters the "permissiveness" that allows Supreme Courts to quietly rewrite Constitutions?

Who sows the seeds of hate in American blacks, Mexicans, Indians and poverty groups — and uses the Canadian Indian and French-speaking Canadian of Quebec?

Maoist and Marxist Clubs, bookstores and demonstrations; radical teachers and professors; revolutionary "preachers" — you name it and the pattern is almost identical in each country. Coincidence? Of timing, target and technique? Not on your life!

When visiting the U.S.A. Khruschev boasted that our grandchildren would live under "socialism" (communism.) The communists have told us they will bury us. We have been told that we will "hang" ourselves.

The trouble is, if and when Canadians and citizens of the United States of America wake up, the most shocking revelation will be the extent to which we ourselves — from politician to poet and preacher, from farmer to floorwalker — helped dig the grave of freedom as we have known it. — Patricia Young, 1030 Nonton Ave., Vancouver, B.C.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 12, 1912:

REGINA — It is evident that the farmers of Saskatchewan have more than repeated the overwhelming vote cast in September last for reciprocity in natural products with the United States. The Conservative party in Saskatchewan has barely escaped annihilation. At noon the Liberals conceded only four seats to their opponents.

In Regina the victory has been felt to be so completely crushing that a good deal of the interest was lost. Returns which were bulletined outside the newspaper office and thrown upon a screen from the Leader office became almost monotonous in their record of Liberal victories.

We Know About Vietnam

NEW STATESMAN, an Editorial

Nothing becomes the Americans in Vietman so ill as the way they are leaving it. Having failed to win the war, they are now creating a desert and brazenly attempting to call it peace.

President Nixon has established at least one claim to fame: he has unleashed more wanton destruction than any other human being in history. Compared with him, even Lyndon Johnson begins to look like a model of restraint. LBJ may never have been especially fastidious in his utterances about the war but at least he showed a certain discrimination in his actions.

Mr. Nixon, by contrast, has displayed none. Gone is even the vaguest pretence that the Americans are interested only in military targests. The vast B-52 bombers pound the earth and everything that is upon it.

Not content with putting the land to the fire and the sword, Mr. Nixon has now resorted to creating rain and flood artificially. And such are the double standards of American hypocrisy that, while the White House solemnly declares states like Pennsylvania and Virginia "disaster area", no one seems to notice that Vietnam is simultaneously being condemned to treatment far beyond the worst nightmares of any homeless American.

Yet from Britain — whether from its governing or Opposition parties — comes barely a peep of protest. Our report that American bombs are now being loaded and dispatched from British ports — in all probability with Vietnam as their destination — certainly argues that the complicity of successive British governments in American war policy has gone further than the public has ever been told.

Will Mr. Heath tell us that he did not know or will he prefer to admit that he simply does not care? Either answer amounts to a blatant abdication of moral responsibility.

But that, of course, is the pattern of the kind of war that has been fought in Vietnam. It has been a war in which men — apart from the occasional ricochet political casualty like Lieutenant Calley — have seldom, if ever, been brought face to face with the consequences of their deeds. Electronic "sensors;" seismic detectors, "smart" bombs, all combine to anaesthetise the last lingering remnants of personal responsibility.

Nor to the Americans is that any cause for concern. It is, in fact, just two years since General William Westmoreland exultantly announced to a Congressional Committee:

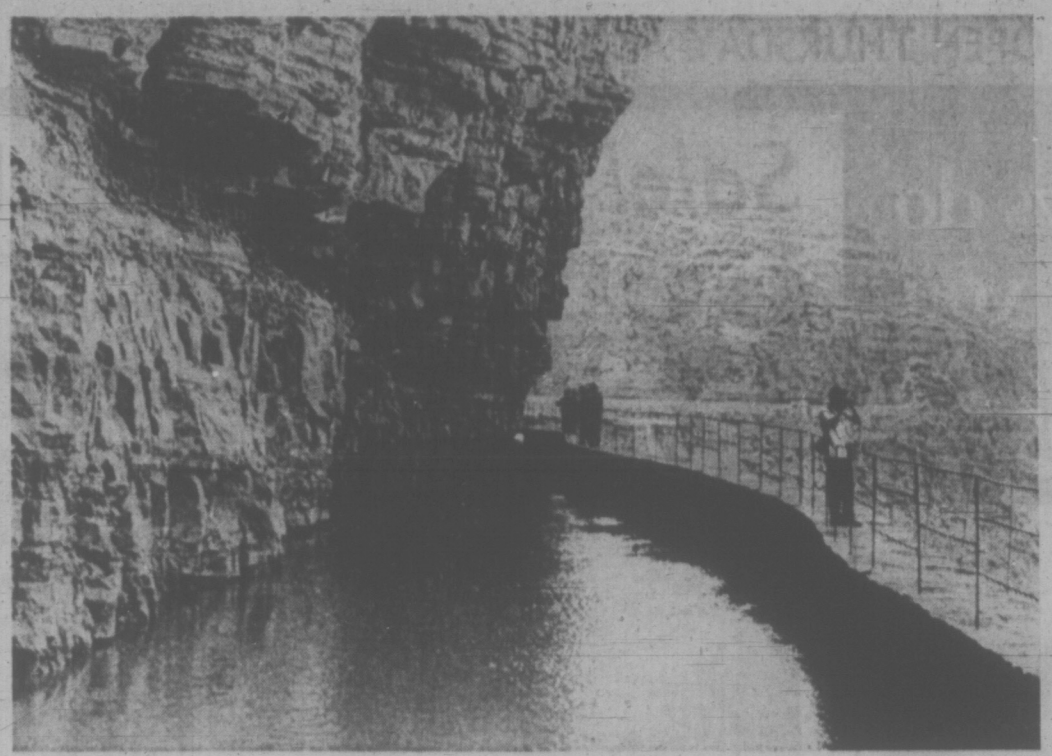
"On the battlefield of the future, enemy forces will be located, trapped and targeted almost instantaneously through the use of data links, computer assisted intelligence evaluation and automated fire control . . . I am confident the American people expect this country to take full advantage of its technology — to welcome and applaud the developments that will replace, wherever possible, the man with the machine."

The gravamen of the charge against the Americans in Vietnam has always gone beyond politics. Indeed, in the political arena things have never been wholly morally clear cut — as was all too eloquently illustrated by Hanoi's shameless trotting out of captured American pilots to rehearse communist parrot cries last week.

The real war crime for which America stands indicted is not that it tried again and again to prop up successive bully-boy regimes — each more repressive than the last. Rather is it that in their anxiety to pull such a trick off, its rulers never showed the slightest compunction about the way in which they did it. The American military saw their opportunity and seized it.

At least for the past seven years Vietnam (both North and South) has served as a combat testing ground, an experimental laboratory for every latest-device of destruction.

It will not be sufficient for the rest of the world to maintain afterwards that it did not know what was going on. That, after all, was the excuse made a quarter of a century ago by the Germans about Belsen, Buchenwald and Dachau. We knew the answer to them then. We ought to tell it to ourselves now.



CANAL CUT through the rugged Tai Hang mountains without modern equipment now brings water from the Chang River, 60 miles away, for 700,000 people of Lin Hsien in China's arid Honan Province. Job was completed by 30,000 peasants and village tap is symbol of their labor.

China Saga Turns On the Tap of Life

By JOHN BURNS, The Globe and Mail

LIN HSIEN, China — Of all the memories that a visitor carries away from this dusty county town, there is none so persistent as the sight of the water tap that stands at the junction in the centre of town.

The tap must be the busiest for miles around. Small boys come to wash their feet under it, their older sisters fill heavy pitchers from it, and their mothers gather beside it to do their washing.

In a region which was chronically short of water for centuries, the presence of the tap is itself remarkable. But more remarkable still is the fact that its users frequently fail to turn it off, leaving the water to gather in a muddy pool at its base.

The abundance of water is something visitors come from all over China and all around the world to see, for Lin Hsien County is the site of the Red Flag Canal, the premier showcase of water conservancy in modern China.

Cut through mountains and across plunging gorges by men and women working largely without the benefit of modern equipment, the canal is as much a monument to the working people of communist China as the Great Wall is to the slave-laborers of an earlier age.

Though it was later taken over by the province of Honan, the canal started out as a local project, conceived by local people as a means of bringing permanent relief from the drought which had long scourged the lives of the county's 700,000 residents.

Lurid Tales

A visit to Lin Hsien today begins with an account of the misery suffered by the people as a result of the water shortage, especially in the days before the communists came to power. The account is spiced with lurid tales of the cruelty of the landlords and rich peasants who owned most of the county's wells.

According to officials, the well-owners would sell the water to peasants at exorbitant prices, or force them to pay for it with their labor. Peasants unable to do either would have to walk as much as 15 miles to one of the few common wells available, trudging homewards with the bulky pitchers slung on shoulder-poles.

And that was not all. Most of the peasants worked land owned by the landlords, paying for it with up to 70 per cent of the yield. The rate was constant, in good years and in bad, so a drought could result in a family having its entire harvest confiscated by a greedy landowner.

This all resulted in some curious side-effects. For example, it became customary for a young man contemplating marriage to ask the putative bride how far her home was from the nearest well. Since it was customary for young marrieds to move in with the girl's parents, a bad location could be disastrous for a girl's matrimonial prospects.

To end such hardships once and for all, the people of Lin Hsien drew up an ambitious plan. Since there are no major watercourses in the county, the only long-term solution was to build a canal to draw water from the Chang, a river that flows through Shansi Province, on the far side of the Tai Hang mountains that flank Lin Hsien's eastern boundary.

10-Year Project

The work began in February 1960. Starting at a point on the Chang where the provinces of Honan, Hopei and Shansi meet, the workers set out to build a canal system more than 60 miles long, with an additional 720 miles of irrigation channels to carry the water to the fields.

In all, it took 30,000 people nearly 10 years to complete the work. According to the official history, now chronicled in a special museum, the workers had to overcome not only the difficulties of the terrain, which were fearful, but the efforts of "political saboteurs" as well.

The saboteurs argued that the project was too costly, and beyond the capacities of the simple men and women who had set out to complete it. In the early stages of the work, their arguments nearly prevailed, and during the Cultural Revolution their feud with the canal's supporters succeeded in halting the work altogether.

Herculean Task

In the end, the faint hearts lost the day, but it is not difficult to see why they had their doubts. A 60-mile canal, 25 feet wide and 15 feet deep, is no easy task with mechanical drills to cut tunnels, trucks to carry quarried stone, and all the rest of the paraphernalia of modern engineering; without them, the job becomes herculean.

Photographs in the museum give the visitor some idea of just how tough it was. One, typical of many others, shows a man chipping away at a sheer rock face, secured from a fatal plunge of several hundred feet by a single strand of rope.

The work produced many heroes, paraded now before the constant stream of visitors to the canal. Their stories are too often painfully long, and somewhat overdrawn, but there is enough substance in them to show that much courage and initiative was involved.

Certified Heroine

Almost all visitors meet Han Yung-ti, a certified heroine for her leadership of the Iron Lasses, a group of young girls who banded together to help cut the 15 miles of tunnels required for the canal. Nationally known for her work, she is not shy about her achievements.

Now a pig-tailed girl in her mid-twenties, she recalls how girls who volunteered in the early stages of the construction were often turned away, told that it was not women's work. This, she says, made them very angry. "so we studied Chairman Mao's teaching that men and women are equal in their capacity to do work, and persisted in our demands."

Eventually, the demands were granted, and Han found herself a member of a tunnel-drilling, rock-blasting crew. Her piece de resistance is an account of her first effort at blasting, which nearly ended disastrously when she lit four dynamite fuses but clambered out of the blasting shaft before reaching the fifth.

She waited for the explosion before confessing to her workmates that she had left one stick of dynamite unlit. Heedless of their pleas, she went back down in the choking dust, found the dynamite, and lit it, thereby removing the danger it presented.

In the end, most visitors are less impressed by the heroes' tales than they are by the sight of the canal itself. Visits to reservoirs, tunnels, aqueducts and pumping stations say more about the mammoth achievements of the workers than any official history ever could.

Camped in Hills

The Youth Tunnel is one of the first stops on any itinerary. More than 2,000 feet long, it was cut through solid rock by a team of 300 boys and girls working under the direction of a professional engineer.

During the 18 months it took to complete the work, the youngsters camped out at the site, high in the mountains. Some tented, while others simply lodged themselves in a cranny for a few hours' sleep. There were several accidents, but only one youth was killed, again while blasting.

The canal has only been open for three years, but officials say it has already wrought radical changes in the county's way of life. Agricultural yields are up dramatically, vast new reaches have been opened for cultivation, and electric power drawn from stations built along the canal has enabled a start on industrialization.

New factories turn out chemical fertilizers, steel, cement, and some basic agricultural machinery. Surplus power is channelled to private homes, over 50 per cent of which are now electrified, a high figure for rural China.

It is in agriculture, however, that the most startling gains have been made. Officials say that over 30 per cent of the county's 150,000 acres are now under cultivation, an increase of nearly five per cent on the figure 10 years ago.

Bumper Crops

In place of the hit-and-miss harvests before the canal, a bumper crop is now secured each year. Average grain yields are increasing, and now stand at nearly 3,500 pounds per acre, gross. This compares with a figure of 1,400 pounds in 1949.

To the average man, this all means a better life. Income is rising, and now stands at an average of $33.60 a month on a county-wide basis, plus a grain allowance which averages about 65 pounds a month. Both figures are well above the average for the country as a whole.

Aussies Angry At the French

By WILLIAM HARCOURT, The London Observer

SYDNEY — The French nuclear tests in the Pacific have created an unprecedented state of tension between France and Australia.

The Governor of South Australia, Sir Mark Oliphant, a famous nuclear scientist, described France as "a bandit with a sawn-off shotgun, holding the rest of the world to ransom."

Businesses are joining in the boycott against French goods. Dockers have placed a ban not only on French ships but on all French goods carried by any ship.

In the French Pacific territory of New Calendonia shipowners have sacked 150 seamen thrown out of work by the Australian ban. The shipowners are going to complain to the French government.

Australian government scientists employed by the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research have condemned the tests. Even disc jockeys on commercial radio stations have banned French songs or make unpleasant comments every time they play a French tune.

The prime minister, William McMahon, repeats vainly that his government has done all it can.

"Not so," says the Labour leader of the opposition, Gough Whitlam, smelling victory in an election year. "Call the Pacific nations' ambassadors in Canberra together and suggest all Pacific nations sever diplomatic relations with France."

Why should the French be allowed to set the bomb off in "our" ocean? It was not allowed in the Sahara. Why should it be allowed here?

Australians to a man are incensed with the French government's "calculated risk," one disc jockey said.

Meanwhile, Australian government scientists have started to take test samples of food and milk for any increase in radioactive content.

In the pubs returned servicemen's pubs, amid the jangle of one-armed bandits and shouts for more beer, the old "diggers" are recalling long-forgotten resentments:

"In the 1914-18 war the French even made us pay rent for the trenches we fought in."

This salad takes only minutes to prepare and can be attractively arranged to present a masterpiece of greenery.

Green Bowl Salad

1 small head lettuce
2 tomatoes, cut in wedges
2 hard cooked eggs, sliced
½ cup sliced, pitted black olives
2 lbs. fresh or frozen asparagus; cooked, drained and chilled
1 English cucumber, scored and sliced
Chill salad ingredients thoroughly. Tear lettuce in bite-size pieces into salad bowl. Arrange asparagus spears in spokes with tops at outer edge of bowl. Place tomato wedges and cucumber slices between spokes. Place egg slices in centre. Top with olive slices. Serve with a tangy dressing. Makes approximately 8 servings.

Top off your Green Salad with one or more of the following salad dressings:

Knotts Berry Farms Italian Dressing, 8 fl. oz. 55¢; Kraft Herb and Garlic Dressing, 8 fl. oz. 29¢; Seven Seas Creole Dressing, 8 fl. oz. 49¢; Lawry's Bleu Cheese Dressing, 8 fl. oz. 59¢.

Hints on Salad Making

- Tear greens, especially lettuce in bite-size pieces. Cutting causes the lettuce to turn brown.
- Carefully wash, drain and towel dry greens, otherwise the salad dressing will not adhere to greens.
- Refrigerate salads until ready to serve (especially these with eggs, fish, poultry or meats).

Dr. Cowburn on his way to make a housecall

He's B.C's Own Flying Doctor

McBRIDE, B.C. (CP)—When Dr. Geoffrey Cowburn, of McBride goes off on a housecall, he may take not only a little black bag but a battle-tested airplane to boot.

Dr. Cowburn is the new owner of a not-so-new de Havilland Tiger Moth, an open-cockpit, single-engine, hand-cranked biplane built in 1938.

Dr. Cowburn intends to use his Tiger Moth in his practice in the McBride-Valemount area of east-central British Columbia.

It was shipped to Prince George, 130 miles west of here, from England, but not all in one piece. It came in several crates, and required four days for reassembly.

"I learned to fly them in England," Dr. Cowburn said. "There used to be a lot of them around, but now they are rare."

When Dr. Cowburn bought his Tiger Moth from a friend, there were 20 registered in the country.

There are Canadian-built Tiger Moths, but they're a bit different. They have tail wheels, while Dr. Cowburn's Moth has a skid. The Canadian models have brakes; Dr. Cowburn's doesn't.

Despite those two minor drawbacks, Dr. Cowburn's plane appears to have a feature useful in mountainous eastern B.C. It has short take-off and landing characteristics, needing a runway less than 300 feet long.

And in this pollution-minded world, Dr. Cowburn can fly with a clear conscience: Like new cars, the little 1938 Tiger Moth uses unleaded gasoline, which is also cheaper than aviation fuel.

There's only one thing that Dr. Cowburn must remember about his Tiger Moth: To be extra careful in stowing his little bag.

'WE'RE BEING BUTCHERED'

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Elmer Frazee, 65, grabbed his ringing telephone early Tuesday and screamed to a neighbor who had called: "We're being butchered."

The neighbor called police. When officers arrived at the Frazee suburban Euclid home, they found Frazee seriously wounded and his wife, Rose, 59, stabbed to death.

The body of their son Donald, 40, was later found in an alley here. He also had been stabbed to death.

Police said neighbors gave descriptions of four men and a woman believed responsible for the attack. Authorities theorized the suspects went to the Frazee home to burglarize it.

Mrs. Frazee's body was found in the living room, her throat slashed, her cheek ripped open and her body cut from head to foot. The husband was found slumped in the kitchen by the telephone.

Police, Convicts Battle

ST. LOUIS (Reuter) — Prisoners armed with tear gas and metal pipes fought police in the city jail Tuesday night as negotiations over demands of convicts erupted into violence.

Warden Alphonzo Lark, nine policemen, two jail guards and four prisoners were injured.

Police said 31 "hard core" prisoners broke into a storage locker and seized tear gas grenades. They made pipe weapons out of plumbing torn from jail walls.

The prisoners had demanded better food, health care, recreation and medical attention.

After the battle, the hard-core prisoners were handcuffed and removed to another downtown prison facility.

Bodies Riddled With Bullets, Inquest Told

NANAIMO — A inquest into the death of a young couple found dead June 22 at isolated Rader Beach on the west coast of Vancouver Island was told Tuesday the couples' heads had been riddled with bullets.

Dr. Robert Clarke, Nanaimo General Hospital pathologist, said Anne Durant, 22, of Vancouver, received five shots in the head and one in the arm.

Her companion, Leif Carlsson, 22, visiting the area from Sweden, was shot four times in the head.

RCMP investigating the incident have called it a double murder.

The bodies were found side by side in a lean-to shelter on the sand of the beach, about five miles south of Tofino.

Joseph Burgess, 25, alias Job Week, of Jersey City, N.J. is being sought for questioning in the case.

Saying that both persons had died of gunshot wounds, Clarke said that in both cases there was no evidence of other disease or injury which could have contributed to the deaths.

The only other witness called was Michael Robert McColl of West Vancouver.

He identified Carlsson's body and said he had met the Swede earlier this year when Carlsson shared his rooming house near the University of British Columbia in Vancouver for about a month.

Lightning Kills Houston Girls

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Three girls were killed Tuesday when struck by lightning as they returned from a neighborhood drive-in grocery during a rainstorm.

THE ONLY ONE WHO CARED

TORONTO (CP) — Anand Chopra seemed to be the only person interested. Tuesday night when a naked man perched on a downtown viaduct ready to jump.

Mr. Chopra said people passed the scene as if nothing was happening even though the man had thrown his clothes into a river below.

"I decided it didn't matter if someone hit my car, so I stopped, ran across to him and grabbed him by the legs just as he started to jump," Mr. Chapra said.

He said the man was in tears when police arrived and was thankful he had been saved.

"I was shocked that nobody wanted to help him," Mr. Chopra added. "Maybe he just wanted to talk to someone."

Falconbridge

Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. directors announced Tuesday that the company will not pay a dividend for the third quarter.

"This decision was reached in view of the reduced earnings of the company to date this year," a statement from the board said.

Falconbridge paid a 50-cent dividend for the second quarter of this year and 75 cents for the second quarter of last year.

The statement cited three contributing factors to reduced earnings: lower copper prices, foreign exchange premiums and "continuing problems" with the nickel-iron refinery at Sudbury, Ont.

Earnings for the first three months of this year prevously announced, totalled $2.1 million compared with $3.9 million for the same period of 1971.

They said the expansion program in Alberta was proceeding rapidly with four offices in Calgary, three in Edmonton, and one in both Lethbridge and Red Deer.

"The company is showing a strong financial position. We will seek to sell some $5 million to $6 million in secured notes shortly which will be used to support the growth in various division," the report said.

Pulp Market Slow to Recover

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The Canadian pulp market — the sick cow of the woods industry — still has a very bad cold.

George Flater of Vancouver, B.C. Forest Products vice-president in charge of pulp sales, said that while sales were up 14 per cent over last year, prices were still below the level needed to produce a worthwhile profit.

"When you say sales are up 14 per cent over last year you have to remember that sales last year were the lowest since the Second World War.

"What we are experiencing is an end to the erosion of the market for pulp. It is a long way from being restored to where it should be."

He was commenting on a statement out of Portland where Georgia-Pacific Corporation executive vice president R. E. Flowerree said there had been a dramatic turnaround in the U.S. pulp market and his company had reduced its surpluses and increased prices nearly $10 per ton.

Meanwhile, Flater said there had been no increase in B.C. pulp prices and none anticipated for many months. "The official list price for pulp is $169 per ton. B.C. firms have not always been getting that.

"To make a reasonable profit the price should be $200 per ton but the excess of supply means it will not reach that level for many, many months."

What B.C. is experiencing, he said, is an end to the decline in the pulp market without any appreciable turnaround yet—although an improvement is foreseen.

A senior spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel, commenting on the Georgia-Pacific statement, said:

"It is true that there has been some improvement in the pulp market but this has been offset by new manufacturing capacity which is coming on stream.

NOT JUST GOOD

"Indications are that this increased capacity will result in a continuing surplus," the MacMillan Bloedel spokesman said.

Commenting on the U.S. scene, Flowerree of Georgia-Pacific said:

"Prospects for 1973 no longer appear merely good—they're very good. A substantial world-wide wood fiber shortage is now more definitely in prospect for the next several years with demand exceeding present and planned new pulping capacity."

Flater, of B.C. Forest Products, said that while U.S. firms had to contend with low prices and oversupply along with their Canadian counterparts, firms in this country also were handicapped by a floating dollar that had moved above the U.S. level.

Surplus Sale Seen in China

MacMillan Bloedel is hoping to sell some of its surplus pulp at the Canadian Trade Exposition which opens Aug. 21 in Peking.

The company recently made a small sale of pulp to China and hopes to vastly expand this trade in an effort to reduce B.C.'s problem of oversupply.

B.C. forestry firms are also hoping to regain a share of the China lumber market. B.C. lumber was bought by China prior to the Second World War.

The trade fair is sponsored by the federal government.

The provincial government will not be participating directly as it is spending $70,000 to finance a trade fair in San Francisco.

A China trade fair is planned by the provincial government for the future but it is not top priority and is at least a year away, according to Trade and Commerce Minister Waldo Skillings.

NAVY ATTACKS SEA POLLUTION

HALIFAX (CP) — Maritime Command is studying all possible avenues to produce an effective means of disposing of raw sewage from Canadian Forces ships, Rear-Admiral R. W. Timbrell, head of Maritime Command, said Tuesday.

He said the forces hope to provide ships with equipment that will meet all acceptable anti-pollution requirements.

Rear-Admiral Timbrell said an one-board system of treating raw sewage was being sought, but no simple or cheap method had yet been devised.

Hopefully, each ship in the fleet would eventually have its own sewege treatment plant but no suitable plants were yet available.

He said a type of dockside plug-in unit had been considered by the forces, but there was a problem in that many foreign ports which the ships visit do not have the same equipment.

He said he could give no indication of when on-board treatment plants would be part of a ship's equipment.

'71 Unemployment Cost Put at $5 Billion

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada fell nearly $5 billion behind what is could have produced last year if, in the view of international economists, it had had relatively full employment.

The country's gross national product—the total value of all goods and services produced in a year—was $83.1 billion last year.

If it hadn't been for unemployment and industrial slack, GNP should have been about $88 billion.

The figures on the gap are given in a new publication of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, a 23-member international body based in Paris which makes frequent surveys of the economic performance of the world's leading industrialized countries.

The report released Wednesday in Paris shows that Canada only slightly improved on its economic performance last year in relation to its potential output. The United Kingdom improved its performance considerably, while more slack developed in the U.S.

Japan had the lowest level of unemployment of the four countries surveyed, but for the second year experienced a big increase in unused industrial capacity.

Canadian Ownership in Malaspina Queried

VANCOUVER (CP) — The percentage of Canadian ownership in Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd. was questioned Tuesday as the Public Utilities Commission resumed a hearing into five applications to build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island from the mainland.

Egerton Warren King of Edmonton, Malaspina's president, agreed with a statement that all the preferred shares and 87 per cent of the common stock of Canadian Utilities Ltd., owner of Malaspina, is held by International Utilities of Maryland.

The issue was raised by Charles Locke, representing one of the other applicants, Centennial Natural Gas Pipeline.

King said his company plans to keep firm control of Malaspina either by majority ownership or de facto control through being the largest shareholder. He said the company's share probably will be raised by sale of an issue of common stock, although it could be taken from earned reserves.

The discussion also returned to how Malaspina would be affected by a plan of British Columbia Hydro, another applicant, to step up power supplies to the Island with a new underwater cable that would make thermal plants unnecessary at the present time.

Asked if Malaspina could continue its application if there were no thermal load, King replied:

"No, I don't think we could for a minute ... if that market isn't there we are looking at a totally different situation."

Locke noted that 40 per cent of the sales projection was for thermal plant supply, and another 20 per cent to supply Port Mellon and Woodfibre by a spur from Powell River.

BLACK-ONLY PARTY FOR SOUTH AFRICA

PIETERMARITZBURG (Reuter) — A new political party for non-whites, the Black Peoples Convention, was formed Monday night after a three-day conference attended by about 100 delegates from all parts of South Africa.

Explaining the aims of the organization, a spokesman said "the object of the convention, which is only open to black members, is to unite South African blacks into a black political organization which would seek to realize their liberation and emancipation from both psychological and physical oppression.

"The convention will operate outside the white government-created systems, structures and institutions, and will not seek election into these."

Confession Ruled Legitimate

SARAFAND, Israel (Reuter) — A military court today upheld the validity of a confession made by Japanese gunman Kozo Okamoto, despite the fact it was only made after he had been promised the opportunity to commit suicide.

The court decided that there was no connection between the "hari-kiri" agreement made by Gen. Rehavam Zeevi May 31, which the general on the same day told Okamoto was null and void, and the confession that Okamoto made four days later to police Superintendent Menashe Golan.

The court pointed out that Golan had warned Okamoto that anything he said might be used as evidence against him in court, making it clear that no one would give him a pistol.

The fact that Okamoto then continued to make his testimony showed that he fully understood that the agreement earlier signed with Zeevi was null and void, the court ruled.

Kozo Okamoto is the only survivor of a three-man Japanese suicide squad which gunned down a crowd at Lod Airport May 30.

A DOWNTOWN CORNER in Toronto on Monday was transported temporarily to the Caribbean with a street performance by a steel band from the Virgin Islands, climaxed by a mambo danced on stilts.

No More 9-to-5 for French Workers

PARIS (Reuter) — A secretary takes two hours off in the morning to get her hair done without asking her boss for permission.

An office worker sleeps late one day simply because he didn't feel like getting up and his boss says nothing.

All three people benefit from flexible working hours, a system that has been tried elsewhere and now is beginning to catch on in France.

At least 50 companies in this country are experimenting with the scheme, and a report on it is to be submitted soon to the labor ministry, which will then take up a position for or against it.

But directors whose companies have adopted the system are already unanimous in praising it. At a recent conference on the flexible hour system held here, not one voice was heard against it.

The way it works is simple. All employees of a company have to be present at work simultaneously for either five, six or seven fixed hours. But outside of these hours, they can come to work when they please, take a long lunch-break if they wish or go home early, as long as they make up the time later and work a certain number of hours a week or month.

Under this system there are no more time clocks to be punched, no worry about oversleeping or missing the train and failing to get to work on time.

The company directors said they all noted a better atmosphere after adopting the flexible hours system. One said it gave his employees a greater sense of responsibility and led to better relations between workers and their superiors.

Another director said the system was highly appreciated by women and had led to a reduction of labor union tension.

The flexible hours system also has advantages to the community — fewer cars on the road during rush hours, meaning less traffic jams. Some company directors also said their employees were having fewer accidents going to and from work under the scheme.

Whether the system will be adopted by other French firms is likely to depend on the decision of the labor ministry to back it or not.

Hot Air Wedding

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Kathy Hiday and Victor Phillips exchanged marriage vows 30 feet off the ground, then descended and were given a police escort out of town for their honeymoon. The young couple was married Saturday aboard a hotair balloon at the Anderson fair. The justice of the peace who performed the ceremony, the mayor, and about 1,000 spectators watched from the ground.

SEWER SNARLED

There seems no end to the Greater Victoria school board's struggle to get sewage facilities at View Royal Elementary up to scratch.

Tuesday night, the board's construction and maintenance committee heard a progress report on work being done on the sewage system at the school site, which was found wanting last year by the Metropolitan Board of Health.

After much wrangling, the school board finally decided several months ago that it should install a pipe from the school's present system to a sewer line of the Capital Regional Board. Before the pipe can be installed, however, approval from a host of organizations must be obtained, and it is in this process that the board's committee found itself entangled Tuesday night.

Among the organizations approached by the board for approval: CP Railway, over whose right-of-way the pipe passes; the provincial Lands Branch, which has said a legal survey is necessary before approval will be granted; the Pollution Control Board; the Capital Regional Board; the Metropolitan Board of Health and the Gorge Waterway Technical Committee.

In addition, the work must abide by the provisions of the Navigable Waters Act.

As board chairman Allan McKinnon said: "We need more approval for this than we would to run an oil tanker route down the Gorge."

New Drainage for Saanich Flood Areas

Saanich public works committee Tuesday night endorsed recommendations to provide new drainage systems in three areas experiencing flood problems.

The engineering department was authorized to proceed with designs for a new storm drain for Eva and Mileva Lanes, where flooding has been caused by an inadequate system.

The drain will run from Eva Lane through Mount Douglas Park to Cordova Bay and engineer John Daye said the cost will be between $7,000 and $9,000.

The committee recommended spending not more than $3,000 on an enclosed ditch for four lots on the south side of Rowan adjacent to Doncaster Elementary School.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said: "This is a bad one," adding he had received several complaints.

Flooding on Pear Street properties during the past few years was attributed to poor drainage and the committee approved installing a storm drain along the road from Shelbourne to Cedar Hill.

Discussion of a drainage system for a lot on Tudor Road was tabled until a cost estimate is obtained and an application for one on the west side of the 5200 block at Beckton was tabled for more investigation.

The committee also endorsed a policy presented by the planning and engineering departments that the Swan Lake sewer trunk "is not intended to receive any sewage flow which may be generated in the future by sections of the Blenkinsop Valley" which are now outside the Sewer Enterprise boundary. This is an area marked for sewer development begun in 1968 and expected to be completed next year.

Council earlier this year approved diversion of the sewage flow to the trunk to allow possible apartment building on Shelbourne, north of Cedar Hill Road, said assistant engineer John Cowlin.

Because this means increasing the amount of sewage going into the trunk from one area, the amount from another must be reduced so the sewage capacity will not be exceeded, he said.

Committee chairman Ald. William Campbell said there were "never any thoughts of developing the Blenkinsop Valley" so the best solution is to take the extra flow for the Shelbourne area from there.

Trustees Crack Down On School Vandals

The Greater Victoria school board took steps Tuesday night to deal with students who wilfully damage school property.

The trustees' construction and maintenance committee passed a motion which would allow them to hold parents and guardians liable for damage done by the children under their care under section 124 of the Public Schools Act.

The proposed board policy, which will likely be approved by the board Monday night, will also allow the district administration to take immediate steps to recover all costs for such damage, if a person pleads or is found guilty of a charge.

The board's action follows two recent break-ins at local schools, one of which resulted in repairs and damages totalling $1,127, not counting some articles stolen. The break-in occurred at Quadra Elementary.

Another break-in occurred at Burnside Elementary with the principal's office entered and some spare keys stolen. Breakage and vandalism also occurred.

Trustee Peter Bunn, in proposing the policy to cover break-ins and damage, said it is time the board had a policy "with which we will endeavor to recoup public money lost."

"We tend to be a bit wishy-washy on this," Bunn said. "We must state our position loudly and clearly on it, not to chase people up, but to say this is where we stand.

"This is a mounting thing and we are not tight on it at all."

District superintendent A. J. Longmore said the board is entitled under the Public Schools Act to bill parents for damages done to school property, if their children are found by the courts to be responsbile.

Well, It's Better Than Nothing...

VANCOUVER (CP) — A surprised would-be robber left B.C. Collateral Loan Brokers Monday with $10 he received for pawning his pistol.

Clerk Al Daniel said he was approached late Monday afternoon by a heavy-set man who said: "This is a holdup."

Daniel leaned across the counter and grabbed the barrel of the 32-calibre revolver, asking: "How much do you want for it?"

The man blurted out: "I was only kidding. Give me $20 for it. I'm just out of jail and I'm going straight."

Daniel agreed to give him $10

The intruder took the money, but as he was leaving, turned back and asked to have the gun back. "I want to show you something about it," he told Daniel.

He then took the gun, wiped it clean of fingerprints, and returned it.

Daniel told the police B.C. Collateral doesn't buy guns, but that under the circumstances, it seemed the best thing to do.

Cherokee Likely Maui Winner

Race officials were shaking their heads Tuesday over the "magnificent" performance of the little 32-foot Seattle sloop Cherokee, which seemed almost certain to become the over-all winner of the 2,300 mile Victoria to Maui yacht race.

Although the big, 53-foot Seattle ketch Odusa was leading the fleet of 16 yachts by 150 miles, her Corinthian Yacht Club berthmate was bidding in the race for second place with Nautical II and Corrotion, also of Seattle.

Cherokee, under the helmsmanship of owner-skipper, W. B. Black, has managed to keep right up with the leaders since the race began 12 days ago, despite her size. Only two other boats her size remain in the race, and both were well back in the fleet.

Black, with two other members of the Black family and three members of the W. M. Fiander family aboard, was being credited with a fine display of seamanship in keeping level with the 42-foot Nautical II and the 37-foot Co-Motion.

One race official here conceded that he wouldn't want to be in Cherokee, with six people crowded into a small boat bucking 15-knot winds and the Pacific swell.

But because of her small size, Cherokee was certain to be the winner on corrected time if prevailing weather conditions continue.

Odusa, under the urging of owner-skipper E. H. Zahn and a crew of seven still looked unbeatable as the first yacht to actually cross the finish line.

Labor 'Split-Off' Feared

LONDON (CP) — Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, says the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions would face a grave threat of disintegration if a number of European labor groups decided to form a separate organization.

MacDonald, who informants believe may be named president of the ICFTU at the end of its week-long conference Friday, said it is essential to prevent any "splitting off" of regional groups from the main body.

Troubling MacDonald and many of his colleagues here is the desire of unions from about 10 European countries to set up their own organization without any organic link to the ICFTU.

Canadian sources indicate MacDonald does not believe this split will actually take place, but it still seems likely to be a central point of discussion in sessions during the remainder of the congress.

MacDonald told the conference that if the ICFTU abandoned its "basic principles and common aims on account of national, regional or section interests, then we shall be lost in face of the growing concentration of economic power, in face of the growing polarization of political power, too . . ."

MacDonald also called for a full discussion of policies for dealing with the spread of Multi-national corporations. "Some of their activities constitute a threat not only to trade unions but also to national governments."

DELAY SOUGHT IN BUG SUIT

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Committee for the Re-Election of the President said Monday that civil court hearings in connection with the break-in and attempted bugging of Democratic headquarters could cause "incalculable" damage to President Nixon's campaign.

In an unusual acknowledgement that the opposition could inflict a deep political wound, lawyers for the Nixon committee asked the U.S. District Court Monday to postpone hearings on the Democrats. $1 million civil suit against them at least until after the Nov. 7 election.

Court hearings and accompanying publicity could deter the Nixon campaign workers, discourage campaign contributions, force disclosure of confidential campaign information and provide the Democrats with a reason to hold press conferences, the Nixon lawyers said.

These statements contrast with those of then-Nixon campaign manager, John N. Mitchell, who called the Democrats' suit a "political stunt" when it was filed June 20.

Warriors Impress Burrards With Fast-Breaking Style

VANCOUVER — The Mann Cup champion Brantford Warriors raced from behind to overwhelm Vancouver Brurrards, 14-9, before over 7,000 lacrosse fans at the Pacific Coliseum Tuesday night, and then headed for Victoria.

That's the second stop of their four-game Western tour when they meet the Shamrocks at Memorial Arena tonight at 8:30.

The Warriors' biggest booster after the game was Burrards' Pete Black.

"That's the way we'd like to play," offered Black. "They move the ball better than anybody I've ever seen for a long time."

"They're a sharp team when you're that sharp, in that kind of shape, the whole game, chasing loose balls, checking becomes a pleasure."

The Burrards broke quickly in the first period and led 3-1 before Brantford's fast-breaking attack began to click. Ron McNeil and Jerry McKenna each scored twice for the defending Mann Cup champs within a span of just over two minutes in the opening period to take a 6-5 edge after the first period.

Brantford never relinquished that lead and had little trouble outrunning the Burrards the rest of the way.

To combat the Warriors for tonight's battle, Rocks' coach Ed Kowalyk plans to use the young legs of Kevin Alexander, just 16, and rookie Gordie Osinchuk, will be coming down from Nanaimo for the game.

When defenceman Bruce Todman was forced into Burrard's goalie Don Hamilton in the second period, he was dinged with a major for high sticking. But Warriors, ahead 10-7 at that stage, scored the only goal during the penalty.

Brantford goalie Bob McCready, who has scored a goal this year, was easily the outstanding player in the game, both defensively and offensively. He stopped 52 shots, and was the individual points leader with six assists, starting Warrior fast break which often caught Burrards up the floor.

Ted Howe scored three times for Warriors and Brian Wilson was the other double scorer. Single goals were supplied by Paul Suggate, Jim Moore, Gaylord Powless, Zeny Lipinski and Milt McNeil.

Rookie Dave Tasker scored two goals and three assists for Vancouver, while Gord Frederickson and Dave Litzenberger each scored twice.

UP, UP AND AWAY was the lot of linebacker Jerry Griffin of Edmonton Eskimos Tuesday night. Griffin wasn't doing a Mary Poppins act. He was hit with a bruising block as Montreal Alouettes defeated the Eskimos 15-13 in the Canadian Football League exhibition contest at Edmonton. (AP Wirephoto)

The Lions: And Don't Dare Mention Grey Cup

Okay, so the B.C. Lions have won the first game of the season; and they won it in dreaded Regina, and against the feared Roughriders, and . . .!

But was it all for real?

What? The Lions won big; it was their first victory there since 1965, and that was only one year after the Lions won the Grey Cup, and those rookies . . .!

Bottle it right there, bub.

This was an exhibition game, nothing more, nothing less. These games don't count, never have, never will, and if the Lions sounded great, perhaps they were in exactly what exhibition games are for. To show off.

Well, maybe this one was just a little bit more. First, the Lions are almost local; and secondly, if it is very early in the season to be handing out compliments, head coach Eagle Keys cannot be excused for what he said on his own private air show.

Asked to rate the team's performance, Keys said something like this:

Some of the people we were counting on did about as we expected they would. We had a good game and there was some good individual play.

Let's take that again.

From Keys it was a definite statement of high praise. Then he spoiled it all, when he added: "We've a long season ahead, and this was only our first game. Some of the things we didn't do properly."

Keys was back in his shell where he'll be most of the year.

A Backfield With Speed to Spare

But still he was pleased, and that's a plus anytime. The rookies had impressed him. Johnny Musso, and Monroe Eley had earned their spurs in the backfield; and when you think the Lions have Larry Highbaugh and Jim Young to catch those passes and Jim Everson to do the heavy slogging, it figures they have speed to burn, perhaps the fastest set of backs in the league, and . . .

Hoo there, boy! Watch it! Sure the Lions put some points on the board, but that means only one of two things. The Lions have a high-powered offence, or the Riders had a lousy defence. Maybe a little of both.

Because that's the stuff that exhibition games are made of — to weed out the culls. Besides, Ronnie Lancaster didn't play all the game at quarterback for the Roughriders. And that's no plus for B.C.

If the Riders were experimenting, the Lions were too. And they still have one quarterback to go in those stakes. Eric Guthrie, the Canadian riflé, didn't get to throw at all at Taylor Field, but three others did.

Don Moorhead seemingly did well enough, but school is still out on the status of Don Bruce, the rookie, and Tom Wilkinson, the veteran. Their fight is with Guthrie.

Excited? Sure, most football fans are, and the radio man at the game really helped to get that idea across. He even referred to second-year man Moorhead as a veteran. (Clancy Loranger of the Province had the best line in answer to that one, when he said: "They aren't making veterans like they used to.")

Taylor Field Not at Its Best

Besides, no game in Regina is worth its salt unless the joint is jammed. There were only 12,000 at Taylor Field, and that's no test at all. The Lions never even got worked over, and the rookies don't know yet what they missed.

Oh, sure, Regina fans have probably calmed down somewhat since the night that Taylor Patterson, an official, got hit with a B-B pellet while working a game there. But they still win a lot of games for the Riders.

It was when Skrien was coach of the Lions. He was standing around at Taylor Field before a game when a bird flew overhead, eyeing a possible target.

Skrien looked up, and said: "Go ahead, everyone else around here does."

So much for history. The present is now.

Because, look what has happened in Calgary . . . in Montreal . . . and Toronto! The Edmonton Eskimos not only jumped the Stamps, the Grey Cup champs, but Winnipeg whipped the whey out of Montreal, and then pulled off a Don Jonas spectacular in getting a late-game tie in Toronto.

That doesn't mean the Stamps, Riders, and Argos are dead. Rather it points to all signs saying "go" in the West.

Or as Lion general manager Jackie Parker said:

"I think we'll be competitive. Nobody is going to run away with this thing out here."

So, for now, put away those 1964 Grey Cup buttons; and don't unlock them until Oct. 8. That's when the Lions invade Taylor Field again.

By then things should be "for real."

Scout Spied, So Billy Was Prepared

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams thought he spotted a Houston scout in Chicago Cubs' last series at Cincinnati, so he came prepared in Tuesday's doubleheader against the Astros.

BILLY WILLIAMS

It was a split, with Houston winning the opener 6-5 and the Cubs, led by Williams, capturing the nightcap 9-5.

"Mr. Williams," as teammate Joe Pepitone refers to him, was so well prepared that he rapped a total of eight hits, including a home run in each game, drove in four runs and hiked his average to .328.

"They were getting me out in Cincinnati on the slow stuff so I figured Houston would start me off the same way," said Williams. "They threw the slow stuff the first two times and then after that I saw everything."

Williams had a pair of singles, a homer and a sacrifice fly in the opener. His homer came in the sixth inning and gave the Cubs a 3-2 lead, but Houston struck for four runs in the seventh, capped by Jim Wynn's two-run homer, for the victory.

In the second game, he slammed a first-inning double, clouted his 18th homer and added three singles, falling one hit short of the major league record of nine hits in a double-header shared by eight players.

Under baseball rules, he is not credited with eight straight hits because of the sacrifice fly, which came in the eighth inning of the opener.

Williams attributed his big day partially to the fact he sat out the second game of the doubleheader in Cincinnati Sunday and Monday was a day off.

"A day off now and then helps me both mentally and physically," said the 34-year-old outfielder. "It seems after a day off I get a little extra bounce. Eight-for-eight? I've never had eight-for-eight even in the Little League.

In other National League one of the poorest seasons of hi games Montreal Expos trimmed San Diego Padres 6-5 in 12 innings, Atlanta Braves went 15 innings to nip St. Louis Cardinals 5-4, San Francisco Giants downed New York Mets 6-1, Philadelphia Phillies tripped Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1 and Cincinnati Reds blanked Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-0.

In the American League, Boston Red Sox shut out Oakland Athletics 4-0, Baltimore Orioles defeated Kansas City Royals 2-1 in 10 innings, Detroit Tigers edged Texas Rangers 6-5, Chicago White Sox trimmed Cleveland Indians 4-3, New York Yankees stopped California Angels 7-3 and Milwaukee Brewers downed Minnesota Twins, 5-4.

MARILYN TAKES MEDAL; DALE TIES FOR SECOND

VANCOUVER, Wash.—Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver, B.C., fired a 36-hole, one-under-par total of 148 Tuesday to capture medal honors in the women's division of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association tournament.

Dale Shaw of Victoria and Peggy Conley of Seattle were one stroke back. Miss Palmer carded a 77 in the final qualifying round Tuesday, while Miss Shaw had a 76 and Miss Conley fired a 75.

Laing Moves Up With Defiant 73

VANCOUVER — Like the proverbial mail carrier, Rob Laing of Prince George defied the elements Tuesday to card a one-over-par 73 in torrential rain and gusty winds during the third round of the British Columbia junior golf championship at Point Grey Golf and Country Club.

The one-handicapper's score, lowest in the second day of play, brought his total for 54 holes of the 72-hole tourney to 225.

Steven Berry of Vancouver's Marine Drive, carded a second straight 76 over the 6,229-yard course to lead Laing by three strokes.

Two Victoria golfers are in a four-way tie for third place at 229.

Win by Single Second Lifts Hill to Third

COQUITLAM — Veteran driver Craig Hill of Toronto has vaulted into third place in the Player's Challenge series, emblematic of the national sports car racing championship.

Hill, 38, moved up with a narrow victory Sunday at Westwood in the third event of the eight-race series.

He now has 49 points, five less than the total accumulated by runner-up Ric Forest of Edmonton. Bryan Robertson of Ottawa leads with 69 points.

Victoria's Gordie Munroe, driving a Brabham BT21, finished 10th in the race.

Als Win Squeaker; Esk Kicking Fails

EDMONTON (CP) — Montreal Alouettes scored all their points in the first half and defeated Edmonton 15-13 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Tuesday marked by the Eskimos' inability to grasp chances.

The Als, whipped 43-10 by Winnipeg Blue Bombers last week, scored on the game's first series when King Corcoran, the game's offensive standout, took the club 84 yards on 10 plays, capped by a 15-yard pass to tight end Peter Dalla Riva. Don Sweet converted.

Included in the drive were six completed passes, three to all-star split end Terry Evanshen.

On the next series, Edmonton, who defeated Calgary 18-14 last week, got back in the game when Dave Walker intercepted a Corcoran pass at the Als' 33-yard line and ran it to the three. Gene Foster went over from there and Dave Cutler converted.

Montreal added a single on a wide field-goal attempt by Sweet which Bane Norrie conceded.

A Bruce Lemmerman pass was picked off by Brad Upshaw late in the second quarter and two plays later, Corcoran calmly picked out Phil Mosser in the end zone with a four-yard toss. Sweet converted.

It was all Edmonton in the second half but they apparently refused to take the win, much to the chagrin of 16,444 fans.

Cutler kicked a 41-yard field goal but couldn't find the range on four other tries. He got singles on kicks from the 48-, 36- and 24-yard lines, had one blocked from 15 yards out and was wide on the last play of the game from 50 yards.

Corcoran completed 15 of 23 for 192 yards.

Ted Beats Rain To Reach Semis

Before the rain washed out the majority of Tuesday's matches, Ted Davies became the first player to reach the men's singles semi-finals in the Victoria City open tennis championships at the Oak Bay Club.

The fourth-seeded Oak Bay player doused clubmate Max Low 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, in a two-hour marathon at their home club.

Davies meets the winner of a match between top-seeded John Nichol and fifth-seeded Greg Miller. George Walton meets Marty Taylor and Ivor Goodmanson tackles Jim Hassard in other quarter-final matches tonight.

Three matches, weather permitting, in the men's doubles will be played tonight at Oak Bay No. II at 7.

In Tuesday's only other action, second-seeded Sally Hemeon of the Racquet Club stopped young Heather Graham of Oak Bay, 7-6, 6-1, in a women's quarter-final match.

Playoffs Delayed

Opening games in area playoffs for Little League baseball teams were washed out Tuesday as rain halted almost all outdoor athletic activity in the Greater Victoria area.

Tournament officials announced that if conditions permit, the playoffs at four parks will begin tonight with the same schedule as was in effect for Tuesday.

BACKSTROKE RECORD

BERLIN (AP) — Roland Matthes of East Germany has bettered his own world backstroke swimming record by almost three seconds with a time of two minutes, 2.8 seconds for 200 metres.

Colwood Teams in Pursuit Of B.C. Softball Crowns

Colwood and District Juvenile Softball Association squads will be battling for British Columbia, Vancouver Island and regional crowns this weekend.

Hampton will face Gilford of Surrey in a best-of-three series for the provincial midget girls' championship at Hampton Park. Games are scheduled for 1 and 4 p.m. Saturday, with a final encounter, if necessary, set for Sunday. Hampton swept the Island series against Campbell River last weekend.

Sooke midget boys head for Whalley for the provincial finals, in another best-of-three series beginning Saturday. Sooke bounced Campbell River for the Island title.

Bantam girls from Cordova Bay will play host to Nanaimo for the best-of-three Island title at 1 and 4 p.m. Saturday as well as Sunday if necessary. Cordova Bay defeated Oak Bay for the south Island title last weekend.

View Royal bantam boys will also be chasing an Island championship with a best-of-three series against host Campbell River. View Royal bounced Esquimalt in the final of a four-team south Island tourney last weekend.

The south-Island playoffs for juvenile girls starting Friday, and boys, Saturday, will be held at View Royal and Esquimalt, respectively.

In two-game, total-run Island peewee finals at the weekend, host clubs collected the laurels.

Strawberry Vale captured the girls' title with an 18-16 victory over Campbell River. Sooke was bounced 8-3 by Campbell River in the boys' series.

Everybody Invited to Help Design Future of Canada

stewart lang

"What we decide today will determine what our life is like tomorrow."

This line, taken from the "participants workbook," perhaps best accentuates the thought behind the Man and Resources Conference program.

A meeting at 7:30 tonight in Camosun College, second in a series of three for this area, provides a springboard for public participation in planning this nation's future.

Another meeting, part of the groundwork for the Canadian Council of Resource and Environment Ministers project, is scheduled for the same time and place on July 19.

Tier I meetings are also being held in 11 other regional centres throughout British Columbia to evaluate local environmental and resource-use problems.

Each of the Tier I meetings will involve a core of representatives from private, public and professional resource interest groups to provide as wide a scope of opinion as possible.

But the accent is on involvement by everyone.

People are invited to bring their ideas and take part in the discussions and decisions. There will be no mere speakers — only participation.

Three people will be chosen from each of the Victoria meetings that attend the provincial meeting in Vancouver Sept. 23-24.

There the delegates will assess all the local problems and issues discussed at the regional level and formulate the provincial input to the national workshop Oct. 29 to Nov. 4 in Quebec.

Out of the 100 people attending the Tier II meeting 50 will come from the regional meetings, 25 to 30 from resource organizations and 10 from the British Columbia Natural Resources Conference (which is carrying out preparation of the program to this level) and CREM staff.

Approximately 50 per cent of the national workshop delegates will be chosen from the provincial get-togethers with the balance composed of national organization, government and task force personnel.

From the national workshop a series of environmental issues will emerge on which a public assessment of alternatives and priorities can begin.

People in a special task force — made up from business associations, universities, government and the public — will then prepare papers on the public-identified problems for background material at the National Conference during October, 1973, in Toronto.

Out of this final meeting, the federal and provincial governments will receive guidelines for future environmental management policies and action.

It is a long ladder to climb, but necessary.

A lot can be learned along the way although the questions that now arise far outnumber the list of answers.

Many interests are involved and participants will be forced to make difficult choices about such varying problems as land use, the spread of cities and the development of Canada's northland. Recreational interests continue to clash with industry, logging and agriculture while increasing energy demands overshadow everything.

"Leave it to the experts," you say?

But who is to choose among the diverse "expert" opinions?

And in the second place, should someone else be an expert in determining your life style?

What is decided in the two-year program will have a large role in determining how you, your children and grandchildren will live.

Experts will be around to help, but guidelines must come from the people.

Man and resources provides a framework within which we might re-examine the way in which we make decisions about our environment. In short, we must decide how to decide.

If all this sounds a little nebulous, it can't be helped. We must provide the thoughts and sweat to make the project a working force and not just another exercise in futility.

The steps have been provided.

All that remains is to mount them.

Firefighters Quit Coast Boot Loop

VANCOUVER — Both Victoria teams in the Pacific Coast Soccer League will be back for another season this fall.

West-United, defending league and playoff champs, and Gorge Molsons were both confirmed as 1972-73 league members by league officials Tuesday, while discounted earlier rumors that four teams planned to pull out of the league and operate a new four-team Vancouver Island circuit.

However, the PCSL lost a mainland entry as Vancouver Firefighters withdrew from the league for financial reasons.

Officials are currently accepting applications for a new franchise and will consider a new entry at the league's annual meeting July 30.

The defection leaves seven teams, New Westminster Blues, University of B.C. Thunderbirds, Inter-Italia, Paul's Canadians, North Shore and the two Victoria clubs.

Nicklaus Threatens Tony's Early Lead

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP) — England's Tony Jacklin forged into the lead in the British Open golf championship today with two-under-par 69 but favored Jack Nicklaus was still on the course with a chance of overtaking him.

Nicklaus was two under par with five holes to play and thus needed to play the remaining holes in one under for first place.

Jacklin's round of 34-35, played in spasmodic rain, gave him a one-stroke edge over two Americans, Dave Marr and Frank Beard, each with 70s.

The course, where Nicklaus won one of his two previous British Open crowns, was hit by a rainstorm during play, with showers heavy at times.

"I'm just delighted with the way I'm playing," Marr, who had to qualify for this tournament, said after shooting a 34-36 on the par-71, 6,892-yard Muirfield course several hours after Beard had finished.

Beard, a $100,000 winner each of the last five years has collected only $16,750 this season. He parred the first nine holes and then made birdies on the 10th and 17th before going over par on the final hole.

Defending champion Lee Treveno of the U.S., one under par after nine holes, and Britain's John Gardiner finished with par 71s. Another British Open winner, Arnold Palmer of the U.S., had trouble with the fast fairways and wind and ended with a 73. Last year's runnerup Liang-huan Lu of Taiwan, had a 77 and Bruce Devlin of Australia a 75.

Crowd-Control Plan for Colleges

Control your crowds!

That will be one of the orders passed along to United States colleges before the start of the 1972-73 athletic season.

A guideline for crowd control, a change in the signing date of scholarship candidates, and a recommendation to abolish splitting of officiating duties were among the major business items to merge from the annual meeting of the (U.S.) Collegiate Commissioners' Association.

The meeting at the Empress Hotel marked the first time the CCA, which performs a significant role in the administration of collegiate athletics has ever met outside the U.S.

The commissioners, representing 11 major conferences and approximately 350 colleges from every state in the union, wound up their four-day meeting Tuesday.

CCA president Lloyd P. Jordan of Richmond, Va., viewed the preparation of the crowd-control guideline as one of the major items accomplished.

While applicable to all sports, he said the guideline was especially aimed at basketball, where "the action is fast and hectic, and the difficulties compounded by the fact the fans are generally right on top of the play."

The guideline, he added, was a "preventative measure" and "places more responsibility on the home team's management." It points out various courses of action that can be taken to avoid defaults, suspensions and other interruptions created by fan behavior in the past.

Jordan also announced that the signing date of a high school athlete's "letter of intent" has been changed. High school graduates seeking grants-in-aid cannot sign the letter of intent before April 4. The previous signing date was May 15.

The commissioners also voted to recommend to abolish the use of split officiating crews, especially in football and basketball. Hitherto, each conference contributed officials when teams met in non-conference games.

"Both the date change and the officiating problem decisions were prompted by economics," he said.

"In addition, we feel split officiating crews are not necessary in this day and age because of the standardization of rules and officiating throughout the U.S."

The association welcomed two new commissioners — Charles Neinas of Kansas City, representing the Big Eight, and Mickey Holmes of Tulsa, representing the Missouri Valley Conference.

In final business, Jordan, vice-president Wayne Duke of the Big Ten and secretary Norvall Neve of the Atlantic Conference were re-elected to the executive.

The 1973 meeting will be held July 7-11 at Vail, Colo.

CELTIC SALE APPROVED

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association's board of governors has approved the sale of Boston Celtics for $5.1 million to Roberto Schmertz of Lakewood, N.J. and rejected a $5 million offer for purchase of Chicago Bulls.

Schmertz, 46, a real estate executive, bought the Celtics from Investors' Funding Corp., which had owned the club since 1971. It will be the second time in the 26-year history of the Celtics that the club comes under single ownership.

The other sole owner was Walter Brown who bought the team in the early days of the league.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy, knocking down persistent rumors, said the Celtics would remain in Boston, playing at the Boston Garden where they have a year-to-year lease. He also said Arnold (Red) Auerbach remains as the club's president and general manager.

Cosmos Play Coquitlam

NORTH VANCOUVER — Victoria Cosmopolitans are scheduled to bid for their second straight victory tonight in the provincial (13-year-old) Babe Ruth baseball tournament, meeting Coquitlam at 5:30.

Cosmos opened the eight-team tourney Sunday with a 9-1 victory over Mount Seymour while Coquitlam started with a 12-4 triumph over Vancouver.

On Monday, Nanaimo dropped a 3-0 decision to North Vancouver. Rain washed out Tuesday's scheduled contests.

Officer Will Seek Out Grants

The provincial government has decided to appoint an industrial development officer to help obtain grants for southeastern British Columbia, the only federally-designated incentive area in the province.

Trade and Commerce Minister Waldo Skillings said the officer — not yet selected — will be obtained through a civil service competition and will help companies obtain federal grants for that area.

Southeastern B.C.'s status as a federally-designated area has been extended until the end of 1973.

B.C.'s decision to aid the region to obtain grants comes after the federal government's rejection June 23 of the provincial government's attempt to have other B.C. regions also named as eligible for federal aid.

Three major areas which B.C. sought to have declared as slow growth districts are east and west Kootenays, the Squamish-Lillooet-Clinton area and south Peace River country. With lower priority, a section of Vancouver Island centred on Port Alberni was also nominated for federal aid but the provincial government.

Skillings told a news conference today the federal government had given B.C. a final and irreversible no to the application.

No further applications for federal aid — except in the southeastern corner of B.C. — would be accepted by the federal government until 1974.

"We are getting the short end of the stick from Ottawa — in fact we are not getting any part of the stick at all," Skillings said.

"We pay our way nationally and we are not getting our fair share."

In the single designated area, Deputy Minister L. C. Hempsall will visit communities in July to assist companies seek federal aid.

He will visit Fernie, Creston, Cranbrook, Kimberley, Castlegar, Nelson, Trail and Rossland.

Hempsall will be followed by the new industrial development officer who will work in the district until the end of 1973.

Meanwhile, Skillings put in a plug for the new B.C. Development Corporation which will have $50 million available to loan out to firms in secondary industry and food processing.

He said it was better to loan money at low interest rates to firms who can put it to use rather than drawing boundaries which restrict grants.

Private banks were charging up to nine per cent for large business loans, he said.

The B.C. government loan fund will charge about 6-7 per cent based upon 1 per cent in first year, 2 per cent the second and so on.

Skillings also announced the provincial government will spend $70,000 to send 40 B.C. companies to a B.C. trade fair in San Francisco September 6.

It is the first B.C. fair held outside the province and will range from marine products to a fashion show.

B.C. booths will also be established in Edmonton during Klondike Days July 20 to 29 and in Seattle Aug. 11 to 20 during the international trade fair.

ANOTHER PROBLEM FOR BORIS

MOSCOW (AP) What can Russian Boris Spassky do with the money he gets for playing Bobby Fischer in the world chess championship in Iceland?

The winner will get about $180,000, including a cut on the sale of television and movie rights. The loser will take home about $120,000.

The normal procedure for a Soviet citizen who comes into a wad of dollars is for him to exchange them for certificates that enable him to buy in special Soviet stores. He also can open a foreign bank account or import Western commodities.

Cellist Mstislav Rostropovich bought an expensive West German car with some of his earnings from playing abroad.

But there seem to be no hard and fast rules.

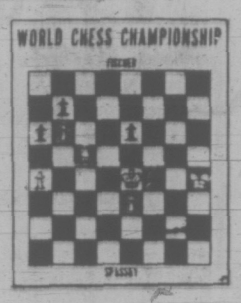
Viktor Baturinsky, director of the Chess Club of the Soviet Union, indicated that some of Spassky's money would go to the chess club.



AT ADJOURNMENT of play Tuesday night, this was the position of the remaining pieces on the board in the first game between Russia's Boris Spassky and Bobby Fischer of the U.S. for the world chess championship. Fischer is playing the black pieces and moving from the top while Spassky is white. The next move belongs to Spassky.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Michael Lorne Lance, 17, of 831 Elrick, was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation in provincial court Tuesday on a charge of attempted theft.

Lance was caught Monday after he triggered the burglar alarms system at Industrial Iron and Metal Trading Co., 343 Tyee.

A Grade 12 student who is in the militia for the summer, Lance told Judge William Ostler he was interested in mechanics and was removing parts from wrecked autos to take them home and study them.

Ostler said it was a "tragedy" that Lance had jeopardized his military career by acquiring a criminal record.

Andrew Willett, 26, of no fixed address, was sentenced to 20 days in jail for possession of a narcotic.

Willott had been on three years' probation following a conviction for possession of a restricted drug for purpose of trafficking.

Ottawa Feeds Ducks

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is ready to put up $5 million for a five-year federal - provincial program it has proposed to cope with the problem of crop depredation by waterfowl on the prairies.

Environment Minister Jack Davis and Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson announced the multi-million dollar fund Tuesday.

The program will go into operation this year if it is accepted by the provinces. Annual damage by ducks is estimated at $6 million.

During the first year of the program's operation Ottawa would put up $1 million to be divided between a joint federal provincial lure crop program and — as an interim measure — the existing provincial crop damage compensation programs.

Similar amount would be available for the following four years of the plan. Damage to grain crops would be reduced by lure crops under the agreement, said the ministers.

The remaining damage would be covered by a form of crop insurance to farmers which would be negotiated with the provinces. The three prairie provinces would match the federal contribution to this program, if agreements are reached.—

Board Loses Bid

REGINA (CP) — Moosomin School Unit Board today lost a bid to halt board of reference hearings into the dismissal of Margaret Gordon, the Grade 9 teacher who allegedly allowed her class to read a sex story.

Mr. Justice R. A. MacDonald of Court of Queen's Bench handed down a ruling today, dismissing an application by the school board to invalidate the hearings.

Noise Protested

EDMONTON (CP) — City Council will ask the Canadian Transport Commission to force Canadian National Railways to reduce the noise at its Calder hump yard or relocate the facility.

Council, at a meeting Monday night, approved a motion calling for the action because the railway's efforts to reduce the noise at the yard in northwest Edmonton has not shown "appreciable success."

Error Admitted

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer admitted in the Manitoba legislature he was wrong in earlier information he gave the house about the price paid by a Toronto company for shares in Tantalum Mining Corp.

However, he also told the legislature that Liberal Leader I. H. Asper, who raised the issue about the cost of the Tantalum shares, also had the wrong information. Schreyer said after double-checking the facts "both of us are in error to some degree."

Expansion Approved

EDMONTON (CP) — The University of Alberta, troubled recently in its expansion program, has again given the green light to new building plans.

The university's planning committee, in a report to general faculties council, has recommended that three projects be given top priority and that planning and development activity on them be resumed immediately. The three projected buildings are for agriculture, medical sciences, and business and administration.

Rabies Warning

EDMONTON (CP) — It has been more than a year since a domestic animal was diagnosed as rabid in Alberta but this is no reason for the public to become complacent, a provincial veterinarian said.

Dr. G. R. Whenham, head of the Alberta Veterinary Services Division field services branch and a member of the Central Rabies Control Committee, said rabies still is prevalent in Saskatchewan and "could cross the border into Alberta at any time."

Elevators Organize

WINNIPEG (CP) — Companies operating grain elevators in Western Canada have announced the formation of the Western Grain Elevator Association.

The new organization will deal with grain handling only and will not become involved in grain marketing policy or promotion of sales. Representatives of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta wheat pools, United Grain Growers and five other companies attended a founding meeting.

Gurgle and a Glup, Sewage Tide Is Up

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

When four neighbors in the 3300-block on Shelbourne hear that ominous bubbling and gurgling — they know by now it means the sewage is coming.

For the second time in two months raw sewage — including brown scum and soggy toilet paper — bubbled from toilets or tubs into their homes this morning. The sewer line under the street outside was plugged again.

"When I heard it I just about died. I knew what it was," said Mrs. Jean Christy.

The sewage overflowed the toilet and bathtub, running from the bathroom through a hall and across the living room to the front door of the Christy home at 3341 Shelbourne.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Picklyk, 3365 Shelbourne, it boiled up in the laundry tub and wash basin and overflowed from the toilet.

At 3355 Shelbourne, where Mrs. Carolyn Ennals lives, it flowed from the basement toilet again. And at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Riggs, next door at 3351, it bubbled into the laundry tub.

It had all happened before — on May 14, Mother's Day.

This time rugs weren't hurt, simply because they had been ruined last time and most of the floors involved were bare.

Once again, the Christys' house, where there are three young children, was hit the hardest.

Arthur Christy hurried home from the barber shop, losing a day's pay again. He now has a rig for stemming the tide from the toilet — first, cloths are jammed in the bowl, the top of a tin is put over them, then a brace of two-by-twos is wedged against the bathroom ceiling.

Mrs. Christy used what sheets were left after the Mother's Day debacle to dike the flow at the bathroom door. But the hardwood floors and partial basement got soaked again and the Christys fear what the floorboards will do.

A Saanich works crew got there faster this time (Mother's Day was a Sunday) and unplugged the sewer line under the street.

One of the men told Christy the problem was roots. Christy is going to remember that because all four families got a letter Tuesday from the insurance adjusters acting for Saanich. It said they were not prepared to accept any liability for damage to the houses from the Mother's Day mess.

Tuesday night the four families worked on a common reply to Mayor Hugh Curtis, saying they weren't about to accept that. (They had estimated damage in the four homes at about $3,100.)

Today they agreed they'll have to amend the letter to the mayor to cover the latest flooding.

"We're going to fight this right down the line," said Christy.

UVic Profs Promoted

Nine University of Victoria faculty members have been promoted to the rank of full professor, the University Gazette announced today.

The promotions bring to 59 the number of senior academics among a regular teaching staff of 384.

The full professorships, effective July 1, go to: Dr. Franklin T. Algard, department of biology; Dr. Michael J. Ashwood-Smith, department of biology; Dr. Franklin E. Churchley, faculty of education; Dr. John M. Dewey, department of physics; Dr. Gordon N. Hobson, department of psychology; Dr. Richard H. Monk, faculty of education; Dr. Geoffrey N. O'Grady, department of linguistics; Dr. John T. Weaver, department of physics; and Dr. John H. Woods, department of philosophy.

The Board of Governors also announced 25 promotions to the rank of associate professor and four new assistant professors.

Touch of 'Blackmail' Seen in Work-to-Rule

Acting Mayor Tom Christie said today if the city police resort to work-to-rule in the current wage dispute it will be "a mild form of blackmail."

In a press conference following a meeting of the 125-member city police union Tuesday night, it was stated another summer of work-to-rule police performance is possible although police would not indulge in an illegal strike to force contract demands.

At the meeting the union unanimously turned down the city's most recent offer of a 3.7 per cent wage increase in a 12-month contract.

"I certainly hope that they would not stoop so low as to pull this work-to-rule business," Christie aid, "that's a mild form of blackmail."

Lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, police spokesman, said at the press conference there was "a very serious lack of morale" in the police force and the union had passed a resolution that this fact be brought to the city's attention.

"I'm really astonished that a lawyer of Mr. Owen-Flood's stature should make such a statement," Christie said.

"Lack of morale is an old chestnut—it's the stereo-type accusation made by unions when they don't get what they want. They use it when they can't get their own way."

Christie said it was peculiar that there had been no apparent lack of morale up until now.

Police Budget Up 25%

"The city is going all out to do what it can to improve the police department and make it a very efficient department.

"The police budget is up 24 per cent over last year's and that doesn't include anything for salary increases."

The police union called for an independent arbitration board after talks with the city police commission broke off last Thursday.

Owen-Flood said Tuesday the union will boycott a provincial mediation commission hearing if one is called.

He said that mediator Clark Gilmour has been appointed by the provincial government to examine the dispute.

Victoria police have been working without a contract since March 31. They're seeking parity with Vancouver's police union, which two weeks ago signed a two-year pact providing for abut a nine per cent increase in the first year.

Owen-Flood stated Tuesday that the police commissioon offer of 3.7 per cent as of April 1, 1972 and 6.5 per cent as of Jan. 1, 1973 "is entirely unreasonable. There would be a gross disparity between the two forces (Victoria and Vancouver)."

"The force is understaffed. Morale is suffering. We feel the city is making a mistake in this regard."

Union president Kenneth Horseman said, "each year we're falling back further and each year our requests are getting larger. Consider that in 1965 we were only $10 behind the Vancouver police force."

Owen-Flood emphasized, "Law enforcement is a public service. We certainly won't go on strike and we won't take a strike vote."

Police officers are not legally allowed to strike.

Last year, however, the Victoria police went on a work-to-rule schedule in June and July in contract dispute.

The campaign was supported by police forces in Shanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Revenue from traffic offences dropped as police gave warnings instead of tickets.

In that dispute the city rejected the idea of having independent arbitration and the contract was settled through discussions with a provincial mediator.

Owen-Flood observed Tuesday:

"The aldermen and mayor gave themselves an increase of 6.5 per cent—twice what they're willing to give their own police force."

GOLDSTREAM ADDITION APPROVED BY CABINET

A 59-acre addition to Goldstream Park has been formally approved by the B.C. cabinet.

The land was formerly part of the Greater Victoria Water District, which has been compensated by an exchanged parcel in the Sooke watershed, according to officials.

The cabinet order, released today, said the land "has been examined and found to be of high recreational value."

Longshoremen Hit By B.C., Japan Strikes

The strikes of the International Woodworkers of America in B.C. and merchant seamen in Japan are squeezing 800 longshoremen out of work on Vancouver Island.

Stan Ball, president of the Victoria local 54, International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union, said today the 175 men in his local have only worked two days in the last two weeks.

"Then, they were loading pulp, not lumber," he said.

Only three ships were loading at island ports today—one at Crofton, one at Nanaimo and the other at Port Alberni.

"I would say at least 20 per cent of the ships that come here are Japanese," Ball said, "and, naturally, the strike of merchant seamen over there is also helping to worsen the situation."

Ball said he was in Vancouver this week and it was obvious that the Japanese strike was also hitting the Roberts Bank superport hard.

"There was quite a pile of coal there," he said, "and nothing was moving out."

Ball is gloomy about the future.

"Most of the ships that come here are on charter and it's hardly likely that when they leave here they'll come back for lumber with the IWA out.

"Things could get worse. Our contract is up July 31 and we've applied for conciliation.

"No sooner than we get that settled," he projected, "then we'll be facing the tug dispute again.

"It's going to be a long, lean summer."

School Days Extended

Three Greater Victoria schools will be operating on an extended-day basis starting in September as a direct result of the province-wide construction lockout which still has not been settled.

District superintendent A. J. Longmore told the school board's construction and maintenance committee Tuesday night that Mount Douglas senior high and Cedar Hill and Central junior highs will have to have some students coming to school at 8 a.m. and others staying at school until 4:15 p.m. to cope with their projected enrolments.

Each of the schools was slated to have work done in time for school opening in September, but the lockout and resulting construction halt means the work has not been completed and will not be completed in time.

About 150-200 students will be affected at Cedar Hill and 100-150 at Central.

If there is no settlement in the construction industry soon, other schools may be affected as well.

Construction and maintenance director S. H. Dietze said there is "virtually no progress at all" at any of the ten schools where work was scheduled.

Ask The Times

Q. Was Foster Hewitt the first man to broadcast a hockey game? — E.F.

A. No. Although hockey's most famous "voice," Hewitt actually was third in line. The first was Norman B. Albert, recruited from the Toronto Star editorial room to broadcast, via telephone, an Ontario intermediate playoff for CFCA on Feb. 8, 1923, from Toronto's Mutual Street Arena. L. D. (Pete) Parker, believed to be living in Kelowna now, broadcast the first professional (and western) game from Regina Stadium — between Regina and Edmonton Eskimos — on March 14, 1923. Hewitt's first broadcast, an Ontario senior final between Parkdale Canoe Club and Kitchener, came on March 23, 1923.

Indian Exhibit Next Project

An exhibit dealing with Indian linguistic groups in British Columbia will be part of the second phase of the Provincial Museum's Project 70 which was officially opened last week by Premier Bennett.

The first phase is a human history exhibit — an historic promenade through B.C.'s past. It was constructed over a two-year period at a cost of $250,000.

Ethnology curator Peter McNair said his department's project will take up half the third floor. He said plans are almost complete but the starting date has not been decided due to one problem — where will they get $250,000?

The price covers materials only. The ethnology department staff will build the exhibit and the government could possibly supply additional manpower through a local initiatives grant.

Assistant ethnology curator Allan Hoover said the display will be more collection-oriented than the human history exhibit.

"We have items dating back to 1895," he said.

The human history department doesn't have as large a collection.

Nine B.C. Indian groups and subdivisions of those groups will be represented in the various galleries. The project will focus on the Indian culture and the effect of contact with European cultures.

The exhibit will feature a full-size replica of a Kwakiutl house owned by Jonathan Hunt of Fort Rupert. It will be built by his son, Henry Hunt and grandson, Tony Hunt.

A reading and reference room will be available to the public and a gallery will be devoted to contemporary Indians and run by Indians from B.C.

McNair said the project will take about one year to complete and the museum staff will work with local Indians as consultants.

APPEAL LAUNCHED IN ARSON CONVICTION

An appeal has been launched in the case of Gordon Allen McLaughlin, 53, of 1355 Lyall, convicted of arson and sentenced to four years in jail in Victoria county court Tuesday.

A hearing expected Thursday morning will determine whether McLaughlin will be released on bail until the appeal hearing which will probably not be held until next fall.

The appeal seeks a new trial for McLaughlin.

McLaughlin was convicted by a county court jury June 16 of starting a fire at the Fleet Club on the Naden base of CFB Esquimalt Oct. 4.

Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake sentenced McLaughlin to the four years but declined to make him pay almost $42,000 restitution to two insurance companies for loss of the building's contents.

The judge said the insurance companies, Lloyds of London and Norwich Union insurance, had not proven they were the grieved parties or that they were legal persons at all.

A "legal person" is an individual, a limited company or a legally incorporated society.

Still No Answer on Sandringham

Striking employees at Sandringham Private Hospital have been waiting almost 10 weeks for Labor Minister James Chabot to answer a request from their union that he "enforce the law" against the hospital.

The request was sent by the Canadian Union of Public Employees in early May and asked that Chabot give it his "immediate attention."

Last week, Chabot told a reporter he was going to write the union but CUPE said today it has not heard from the minister.

The B.C. Labor Relations Board, in a decision last February, ruled that Sandringham is not bargaining and has not bargained collectively with the union. An appeal by the hospital was rejected in April.

The union has contended that Sandringham is committing offences against the Labor Relations Act and Mediation Commission Act and that the board's decision calls for action by Chabot.

Sandringham has said that there was collective bargaining and this was shown by the fact the union went on strike and a prerequisite for this is that both sides have bargained.

Twenty-eight employees, most of them nurse's aides, went on strike Sept. 30, 1970, seeking a first contract. New employees were hired to take their place and the hospital has continued operating.

NEW SYSTEM AIDS CONSUMER

Better Fit in Tots' Wear

OTTAWA (CP) — There was a time when try, try again was the rule rather than the exception in fittings for children's new clothing.

But Eleanor Ordway, director of the federal consumer services branch, says this is changing and she credits the introduction of the Canada standard sizes system—CSS for short—with making life easier for shoppers.

The system uses the results of body measurement studies of American and Canadian children to establish classifications to match body size.

"Age as a guide to body size is very misleading and inefficient," says Miss Ordway. As a result there was a long-standing dissatisfaction with children's ill-fitting clothing."

She says the CSS system has reduced the number of try-ons in stores and the number of articles returned to clothing stores. It also is an assurance of certainty of size when ordering by mail.

Other officials say the use of the CSS system was given a big boost when Eaton's and Simpson's, Canada's two major mail-order merchandisers, adopted it for their catalogues.

L. F. Kolasinski, chief of the textiles division of consumer services, says the system has been generally accepted by consumers and the clothing industry.

His department has issued almost 200 licences to manufacturers allowing them to display a CSS label on their products. Many manufacturers have brought their sizes into line with CSS without taking out licences.

Miss Ordway says there has been some criticism of it, usually in specific articles of clothing. She says the length measurements for boys' trousers are "not too satisfactory" and there is a shortage of garments in the system's 6X-to-14X size range.

Mr. Kolasinski says the system does have its limits.

"If the mother buying the clothing does not take the time to measure the child, then the system is useless."

To get around this, the consumer services branch has issued a booklet advising how parents can measure and record their childrens' sizes. The booklet, 3½ by 2½ inches, also carries a table containing the Canada standard sizes. It can be obtained free of charge from the department of consumer and corporate affairs, Box 99, Ottawa.

Apricot Bavarian with Raspberries

By MARY MOORE

Surprisingly, this beautiful and delicious dessert goes together as simply as it reads. There need be no doubts in your mind about the outcome. It works and was acclaimed by all of our tasters.

APRICOT BAVARIAN WITH RASPBERRIES

(Serves 6)

Pkg. 3¼ oz. vanilla pudding mix (not instant)
1 envelope unflavored gelatine.
¼ cup granulated sugar
1½ cup canned apricot nectar (buy a 13-oz. can)
¾ cup whipping (32%) cream
Fresh or fresh frozen raspberries (or other fruit).

In a medium pot mix the pudding mix, gelatin and sugar; then stir in the apricot nectar. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Chill until nearly firm. (I stood mine in a large pan of ice water.)

Whip the cream until stiff. Without washing beaters, whip the jelled apricot mixture until light. Fold whipped cream in until perfectly blended.

Spoon into 6 individual moulds. (I used six miniature tube moulds — like tiny angel food cake tins.) Or turn into a cut glass bowl. Chill until set.

To unmould, run knife around sides of moulds, then dip bottom of moulds in hot water and count to five. Turn over and out on to shallow stemmed glasses or tea plates.

Surround with a tight row of fresh (or fresh frozen) raspberries, or with other colorful sliced fruits in season (peaches or cantaloupe balls, for example). When growing season is over, use canned fruits, such as drained mandarin oranges or purple plums.

NOTE: Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope.

MAINTENANCE CASE APPEALED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer David Nuttal has announced that a British Columbia Court of Appeal ruling that could deprive thousands of divorced women of their maintenance will be taken to the Supreme Court of Canada for a final decision.

Mr. Justice A. B. Robertson of the appeal court last month held that two previous B.C. Supreme Court decisions on maintenance payments for Mrs. Josephine Teresa Zachs were invalid under Canada's Divorce Act passed in 1968.

The original maintenance order for Mrs. Zachs and her eight-year-old child was made after a divorce decree nisi—the first stage before the final decree—had been granted.

The judge then referred the decision on the amount to the Supreme Court registrar in the normal way, after deciding that Louis Zachs was liable for whatever amount was set.

A second order by another Supreme Court judge later raised the amount.

Mr. Justice Robertson held, in effect, that under the 1968 act, the judge granting the decree nisi must determine the amount to be paid and must deal with this before the decree is granted.

Mr. Justice Robertson said at the time that he hoped the important question of law raised in the Zachs case would come before the Supreme Court of Canada.

No Need to Socialize, Be 'Civil' for Husband

DEAR ABBY: Here's the picture: My husband employs a salesman I'll call "Ben." After 25 years of marriage, Ben walked out on his wife and family for a little tramp half his age. There was a lot of gossip about it so my husband transferred Ben to another city.

My husband sometimes calls the out-of-town salesmen in for meetings, and naturally Ben comes and brings this tramp with him.

I admit I identify with the wronged wife and I can't stand the sight of Ben's girl friend. My husband entertains his business associates for cocktails in our home, so Ben and his girl friend are included. Abby, it eats my innards out to even speak to her, and I don't have much use for Ben either.

My husband says their private lives have nothing to do with him — that Ben is a great salesman and he is not going to insult him.

My question: Should I be expected to associate with people like Ben and that cheap little home-wrecker? — Irate Wife

DEAR WIFE: It's your husband's home, too, and if he wants to entertain his business associates, you should cooperate. You don't have to "socialize" with Ben and his friend. Just be civil.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HELPLESS: Don't tell the father anything. You could be mistaken about the conclusions you drew concerning his daughter, and son's relationship. In any case, they are living in another country, far from home, are both of age, so the father couldn't do anything about it anyway.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

'Interlocking' Ups Food Prices

By SUSAN BUTTAN
Times Staff

family
WENDY DEY - EDITOR

If there's a corn crop failure in the United States or a poor sugar harvest in Cuba, your food bill will feel it sooner or later.

So says one of Victoria's consumer price experts — the woman who makes a monthly price check here for the federal government's consumer price index.

The woman has asked that her name not be used to avoid jeopardizing her confidential relationship with the stores she surveys.

Last week she and other price investigators across Canada made their monthly price checks for Statistics Canada, to see how much the cost of living is going up. In Victoria, she checked 200 food items in 16 stores — from large supermarkets to corner groceries — plus a number of drugstore items.

Victoria's investigator has been doing price checks here for four years so has viewed the rise in food prices at close range. This reporter accompanied her on her rounds one afternoon to find out what items are going up in price — and why.

"Many people don't realize how "the interlocking of items" causes prices to rise," the investigator said.

If a corn crop fails, then the price of corn oil rises. People begin to buy peanut oil as an alternative and so its price will begin to climb. So will the price of peanut butter, because more peanuts will be used to make oil, which is then in demand, she explained.

"Right now you'll be seeing an increase in the price of jam," she said.

The reason for this is that the price of sugar is at an all-time high, she explained. This will soon cause an increase in the price of cookies, cake mixes, jams — everything containing sugar.

"It's like a jig-saw puzzle," said the investigator. She sees the price changes, then tries to figure out what has caused them.

The price of honey has also soared, she said. One brand has gone from 69 cents to $1.09 in a year. She thinks this is due to a smaller crop last year, an increase in export sales, and the increased demand for honey because of the high price of sugar.

Fish prices are up, especially halibut. "It's just jumped up out of reason," she said.

Some stores are even beginning to stop carrying halibut, she added. Frozen cod fillets also have jumped 10 to 20 cents this month.

She noticed this month too that the price of powdered milk has skyrocketed. But she doesn't know why yet.

"Last time (the price jumped) they said it was because a federal subsidy was dropped." They can't use the same excuse twice, she added.

Careless shoppers bother the investigator. She watches them heading for the Grade A medium eggs, thinking they are cheaper, when often the Grade A large eggs are no more expensive.

She pointed out two half-gallon containers of ice cream, one in a plain blue and white package, the other in a fancy bucket with handles. The half-gallon bucket cost over 20 cents more, yet the small print showed both brands came from the same dairy. Both are bound to be good ice cream, she said.

The list of items the investigator surveys attempts to reflect consumer items essential for the typical Canadian family. The list is determined by having a group of families across the country keep a detailed record of how they spend their money each month.

New products are being added to the consumer price index every year, as they become essential items, said Victoria's investigator.

Most products being added are convenience items, she said — plastic garbage bags, liquid wax, pet food, canned stew, frozen cakes, frozen French fried potatoes, frozen corn, fabric softener.

She suspects the appearance of convenience items on shopping lists reflects the growing number of working wives in the country.

There is a trend to switch to larger sizes of products on the price index, she said. Once they checked prices of the 16 ounce loaf of bread; now the 24 ounce loaf is standard in supermarkets. Only ketchup has remained the standard 11-ounce bottle, because many people like to put the bottle on the dinner table, she said.

"Grocery store owners are much maligned," she said. They try to keep prices down as best they can, she said, and shouldn't be blamed for high prices.

She advises the shopper to comparison shop in different stores and to watch the newspaper ads for "specials."

"I think young girls, and boys too, before they leave high school should have an intensive two week course in shopping," she said.

FUDGE THE BEAVER and Jill Stainsby seem to be hitting it off pretty well at the Stanley Park Children's Zoo in Vancouver. Five-week-old Fudge was found near Stewart, B.C., and shipped to the zoo where Jill happily handles meal chores.

Visit to the Past

There is no better way to pass a rainy afternoon in summer than to sit over a cup of tea and listen to the reminiscences of a long-time resident of Victoria. Especially when that person is Mrs. M. Kirkpatrick Crockett, descendent of the pioneer Woods family of Garbally House, an early residence on Victoria Arm.

Born Winnifred Anne, a daughter of Katie (Woods) and John Andrew, she grew up to become first secretary in the old provincial museum, housed in the east block of the Parliament Buildings.

Joined Museum

It was back in 1912 that Miss Andrew joined the museum staff, numbering at that time only six men.

Francis Kermode was director. The taxidermist was Sam Whittaker, assisted by Ernie Anderson who also went out into the field as a collector during summer months. There was an entomologist named Blackmore who did field work too, and a couple of maintainence men named Marsden and Park.

Kermode had his office on the top floor. Miss Andrew worked in a large room on the main floor. Taxidermy work was done in the basement directly below the walkway that still connected the east block to the main building.

There was also a darkroom in the basement and soon after Miss Andrew became secretary, Kermode suggested she take over some of the work of developing and printing negatives used as records by the staff.

"I didn't know a thing about photography," Mrs. Crockett says with a reminiscent smile, "but I soon learned."

Every day brought its quota of visitors. There were no guides and no conducted tours. So it was the secretary who often left her work to talk to people and to explain about the various exhibits.

"Ours was a purely natural history museum," she reminds you, "featuring mainly animals, birds, insects, snakes and butterflies."

"We had a lot of Indian artifacts, watched over zealously by Dr. C. F. Newcombe and his son Billy. But there was no place to really display them and they were tucked away in an old shed behind the museum and later, down in the basement."

Most exhibits were under glass "but the animals were all out in the open and many of them got so much stroking and patting from children's hands they developed worn patches that had to be repaired from time to time."

Until Miss Andrew went to the museum, fish were kept in a preservative liquid, under glass, and hung upright around the walls.

Just at the time she became secretary "it was decided to make casts of the fish and then paint the casts in natural colors."

Card Duty

Another duty Miss Andrew took on as secretary was the printing (by hand) of cards that accompanied each exhibit in the museum. Those cards, so meticulously inscribed, were still in use in the final days of the old building.

In 1916 Winnifred Anne Andrew resigned and travelled to the British West Indies to marry her fiance, Max Kirkpatrick Crockett who was second-in-command there during the First World War.

At the end of hostilities they returned to Victoria where he eventually became city lands commissioner.

Fifty-six years ago they moved into the Robertson Street home where three sons and a daughter grew up, where grandchildren now visit them and where today they live quietly with their memories.

One Visit

Mrs. Crockett has only visited the new museum on one occasion and that was shortly after it opened.

It's "marvellous" she says. She's happy that Indian artifacts have been given exhibit areas worthy of their importance.

At the same time she "sometimes wonders" about the butterflies, birds, animals, snakes; the fish casts "and even the visitors' books that were in the entrance to the old museum." And she hopes they too, have an honored place "somewhere" is the new complex.

Prehistoric Human Remains May Get Age Checks

ELY, Minn. (AP) — Human skulls, bones and artifacts found in the Boundary Waters canoe area four years ago and kept secret until recently could be those of a prehistoric type of man never before found anywhere, scientists studying them say.

The skulls are under study at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. and if Dr. T. Date Stewart determines the skulls are unique enough to warrant further investigation, a carbon-14 age test will be made.

The test requires burning one gram of bone material, and University of Minnesota scientists have been reluctant to destroy any of the material.

A copyrighted article in the Duluth News-Tribune Sunday told of the find and a report by Dr. Elden Johnson, Minnesota state archaeologist.

The skulls have extremely low foreheads and prominent brow ridges. Johnson said the combination suggests the skulls are typical examples of what must have been a very early type of man or an inbred population.

"The skulls . . . may well represent a pre-Indian type of man that is more closely related to Neanderthal man than any previously found. Their discovery tends to push the date of occupation of the Western Hemisphere by human beings way back," said Dr. Richard Adams, an anthropologist and leader of the university team that first examined the find.

Adams added that the skulls also could "represent a remanent population of a primitive type of man who inhabited the North American continent long ago and somehow survived until comparatively recent times by living in isolated refuge areas."

Golden Fleece Chase' Holiday?'

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The territorial government's search for the golden fleece of the musk-ox has started, but the same officials who financed the expedition now say it is a wild goose chase.

Tom York, a United Church minister here, is leading a 12-member party into the heart of the barrenlands in search of the rare and valuable woolly undercoat of the musk-ox.

The downy undercoat, called qiviut, is worth $50 a pound wholesale in its refined state and when knitted can cost $37 for a scarf to $100 for a sweater.

Operating under a $5,000 contract with the territories industry and development department, Mr. York has been hired to collect the wool by hand where it is left behind by the animals.

'PAID HOLIDAY'

Most government officials scoff at the expedition—to the Thelon Preserve 400 miles east of Yellowknife—as a complete waste of money, and as one said, "a paid holiday for these guys at the taxpayers expense."

Jack Birt, the development officer in charge of the project, also is cool, although he does not write the project off completely.

He admits that "everybody is dead against it and it does look like a pretty wild goose chase if you ask me."

Money for the expedition was made available in January after the territorial council rejected a proposal for an expensive musk-ox ranching operation on a commercial basis.

BLOWS ACROSS TUNDRA

The search theory is based on musk-ox shedding their undercoats in April and May before the hot weather with the tufts of wool blowing across the tundra and snagging on willows along the Thelon River.

Paul Kwaterowsky, head of the territorial wildlife division, opposed the expedition from the start, saying musk-ox do not congregate in large herds but in groups up to 20 animals.

He said the wool is spread in relatively small amounts over a vast area, and recalled a personal attempt to gather some.

"I'm rather persistent, but I gave up after 10 minutes because it was not worthwhile. The wool is scattered over an extremely wide area."

The musk-ox cannot be sheared like a sheep because they would die in the chill temperatures.

Canada Atomically Upstaged

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Canada's bid for a nuclear power partnership with Britain seems to be cast into the shadows with the country's biggest potential user submitting plans for a nuclear system completely divorced from the Canadian design.

Canadian officials, watching each move in a field where billions of dollars worth of nuclear reactors may be at stake, emphasized today that the British government still hasn't made up its mind on a new nucear design policy.

However, they agreed that the initial move by the central electricity generating board is discouraging. The board requested government approval for development of high temperature, gas-cooled reactors as the basis for collaboration with Britain's future Common Market partners.

Last month a Canadian sales team headed by J. Lorne Gray, president of Atomic Energy of Canada, pressed for British concentration on steam-generating heavy water reactors similar to the Canadian pressure-tube natural uranium systems.

NO ORDERS YET

A 100-megawatt prototype has been operating in Dorset for at least three years but none of the British power utilities have placed any orders for it.

The Canadian sales pitch came amid indications that the British government wasn't too sure which nuclear path to follow.

Newspapers described the situation as "a dreadful muddle." However, the Times noted that the central board's submission of plans for a high-temperature gas-cooled reactor "would seem to reject the recent Canadian offer."

Britain currently uses gas-cooled enriched-uranium reactors which have had trouble with corrosion. The central generating board, the country's biggest potential nuclear power customer, is reported interested in the American pressure-vessel light water reactor as a stopgap system for the more immediate future to bridge the period before the next major British nuclear development stage takes place.

The U.S. has been selling a number of its reactors abroad, backed by proven reliability of the system and the fact that the producers have substantial financial resources.

The Canadian producers argue that by itself Canada doesn't have sufficient credibility to convince the world that its own system can compete with the American product. But a joint effort with Britain would undoubtedly produce that credibility, especially with Britain about to become a member of the Common Market.

Melina Can Go Home for Mother's Funeral

MERCOURI
. . . going home

ATHENS — Premier George Papadopoulos will permit Greek actress Melina Mercouri to enter Greece for the funeral of her mother.

Miss Mercouri, an outspoken opponent of the Greek military regime, was deprived of her Greek citizenship by the government soon after it took power in April, 1967. Her mother died here Monday.

Three months ago, the government allowed the remains of Miss Mercouri's father, who died in June, 1967, to be brought to Greece for burial but forbade the actress to accompany the body.

NEWPORT, R.I. — Brian Cooke of England piloted his 59-foot ketch British Steel across the finish line early today, the fourth person to complete the Transatlantic single-handed yacht race in less than 26 days.

Canadian Labor Congress president Donald MacDonald has appointed his special assistant Kenneth Robinson, formerly of Victoria, to the position of public relations director of the CLC and editor of its Canadian Labor magazine.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Mezzo soprano Jean Madeira, U.S. singer who became a reigning diva in Europe, died at her home Tuesday after a two-year illness. She was 47.

The green-eyed, raven-haired, statuesque beauty signed with the Metropolitan Opera after her graduation from the Juilliard school in 1948 but she only got one Carmen performance with the Met studio company.

Deeply discouraged, she made her way to Europe and landed a contract with the Royal Stockholm Opera in 1954. Her sultry Dalila rocked the critics who hailed her as "a phenomenon of nature."

Sir Rudolf Bing brought her back to the Met in 1956.

TOOELE, Utah — A Salt Lake City man has been charged with kidnapping his estranged wife who was discovered bound hand and foot in a desert area west of Grantsville.

The complaint was signed against Charles W. Hughes, 46. A passing motorist found Mrs. Hughes Sunday, shortly after the incident.

U.S. Eases Cuba Ban

WASHINGTON (WP) — Three U.S. government ocean scientists have attended an international scientific meeting in Havana on the first official mission to Cuba since the two nations broke off relations 11 years ago.

RHYL, Wales — Security men guarding Princess Anne stood helpless Tuesday as a woman rushed from a crowd here and embraced the 21-year-old daughter of the Queen.

Ellen Murphy, 56, said "Bless you" to the princess before being pulled away by onlookers.

The princess seemed more amused than concerned.

"Princess Anne looked so charming I couldn't help it," Mrs. Murphy said later. "I just hope she didn't mind."

He served overseas with the First Canadian Pioneers and was a member of the Columbia Lodge No. 2, I.O.O.F.; the Pro Patria Branch, R.C.L. and the Silver Threads. He leaves his only daughter, Mrs. A. F. (Catherine) Merrill and son-in-law Alan, with whom he resided; one grandson, Charles; two granddaughters, Mrs. B. (Cathy) Wason and Janice; two nieces and one nephew, and two sisters residing in England.
The funeral service will be conducted on Thursday, July 13, 1972, at 1:30 p.m. from CHAPLIN'S FUNERAL CHAPEL, with Rev. Alex Calder officiating. Interment in Veterans' Cemetery.

LODGE NOTICE
The officers and members of Columbia Lodge No. 2, Odd Fellows, are requested to meet at Chaplins Funeral Chapel, Fort Street, at 1:30 p.m., Thursday, July 13, to attend the funeral of our late Bro. C. A. Weeks. — H. Hutchinson, Sec'y.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Women Who Won't Eat

Occasionally a stomach specialist will be asked to see a woman with anorexia nervosa (loss of appetite due to nervousness) who has gone down in weight and become so thin that her family has become frightened. Often the woman does not seem particularly concerned.

Another interesting thing is that the woman, in spite of her emaciation, is usually active. Only rarely, when a psychotic woman has continued to refuse to eat, does she have to be put in a hospital where she is fed with a stomach tube.

These persons have been, in my experience, always women. I have never had a man who, because of nervousness, went down to skin and bones as some women did. Such women are always very nervous, and some are on the borderline of psychosis. Often the woman was previously overweight, and went on starving herself after getting down to a normal weight.

Rarely would the woman say why she had done what she did. One emaciated young woman, whom I saw in a mental hospital, admitted to me that she was trying to commit suicide in this way because her third fiance had left her. I was able to talk her out of this idea, and she soon started to eat and gain weight. She immediately left the hospital and went back to her secretarial job.

I saw a dozen or more of these women, and in every case, I had to find out what had happened to them to make them want to give up. I had to convince them that life was worth living. I was able to put weight back on them, but in several cases I learned later that the girl or woman had gone back to starving herself again.

Some of the young women had one or more psychotic relatives. One of the most emaciated of the patients was a nun who had become desperately unhappy in her religious life. The only way I could help her was to talk with her Mother Superior, who kindly allowed the girl to leave the convent and return to life as a lay person.

HOW TO TAKE NITROGLYCERIN FOR HEART DISEASE

I just read a release from the American Heart Association, in which Dr. Philip Needleman, an expert on drugs, reported that a study has shown that certain drugs prescribed to head off the chest pains of angina pectoris, when taken by mouth, pass directly from the gastrointestinal tract to the liver, where they are destroyed.

Dr. Needleman says that this does not happen, however, to nitroglycerin, the drug most widely used in the treatment of angina (heart pain) when it is used properly — that is, dissolved under the tongue but not swallowed. When taken this way nitroglycerin acts to relieve pain for about 10 to 30 minutes.

AL BAILEY SAYS
FOR JUICIER AND MORE FLAVOURFUL RESULTS "DO NOT SALT YOUR MEAT" EARLY IN ITS COOKING TIME BECAUSE
Salt has a tendency to draw moisture from the meat and moisture is your main tenderizing ingredient and a chief source of natural flavour. Therefore loss of moisture due to salting means loss of juiciness — tenderness — and flavour. If salting is desired — do so only near the completion of the cooking time.

Parents Worrying Less About Pot

VANCOUVER (CP) — The attitude of parents toward the use of soft drugs by their children has undergone an "amazing" change in the past year, Dr. Allan Connolly told a Narcotic Addiction Foundation seminar Tuesday.

Dr. Connolly, medical director of the foundation's house program, said parents now worry less about the use of soft drugs.

"Many adults now are using marijuana and hashish themselves; it's become more of an accepted thing," he said.

However, he added, this new acceptance of soft drugs does not decrease parents' concern about the use of heroin and chemical drugs and drug education programs in city schools are meeting with encouragement.

Don Dawson, a senior counsellor with the Vancouver School Board, told the seminar that he is conducting a drug education program at the Grade Four level in about 39 city schools.

"We want kids to know about drugs before they're really involved in using them," he said.

NUDES BETTER THAN WEATHER

SAUGUS, Calif. (UPI) — "Only one or two people called" to complain when a cable television station broadcast the image of a Playboy centrefold nude for more than an hour instead of its normal weather dials.

Station manager Craig Rahn said Tuesday he did not know whether the lack of calls indicated people would rather look at nude women than temperature gauges.

U.S. Paper Folds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Washington Daily News announced today it has ceased publication, effective immediately, and has been sold to the Washington Evening Star.

500 Toronto Police To Guard 'Stones'

TORONTO (CP) — More than 500 policemen will be on duty Saturday when the Rolling Stones rock group performs at Maple Leaf Gardens, Deputy Chief Jack Ackroyd said today.

He said at least 200 men will be outside the Gardens at all times, 200 will be in reserve, and at least 100 others will have various duties inside and in the vicinity of the Gardens, such as undercover work.

The additional police services will cost the city about $15,500, but the Gardens will pay for 100 men at an average of $31.29 a day.

Deputy Chief Ackroyd said policing the Stones' concert should be easier than the policing in 1964 when 800 men were used to control crowds attending the Beatles concert. The British quartet stayed overnight, and the final bill to the city came to about $25,000.

He said the Stones have cancelled their overnight stay at the Royal York Hotel, and are flying directly to Montreal, their next tour stop, after their second concert ends about midnight Saturday night.

RIOTS ELSEWHERE

The deputy chief said the police will be required because of riots that have occurred in Vancouver, first stop for the Stones on their North American tour, San Diego and other places.

Insp. John Wilson, head of the morality squad, said two persons are going to be charged with scalping tickets. They were caught asking $30 for a ticket worth $4.95.

"We're not anticipating any very great problems," said Peter Larsen, attractions manager at the Gardens.

"There hasn't been any trouble since the San Diego concert in June and so far there have been no incidents within the buildings at any of the Stones' concerts."

Mr. Larsen said seating capacity of the Gardens is a little more than 17,000, and "we have already sold in excess of 34,000 tickets for the two concerts."

DOG PSYCHOLOGY SOLVES CAT FEAR

TORONTO (CP) — Jackson, a 14-pound Cairn terrier, has been given a dose of confidence.

The dog, owned by 15-year-old Joe Shipley of Toronto, had an emotional problem—he was afraid of the family cat.

Jackson was sent to Hilda Pugh for therapy and after six weeks of treatment, he now chases the cat.

Mrs. Pugh, who said she once took a course in dog psychology, operates a training school on a service station lot, charging $3.50 an hour to analyse the motivations of dogs.

Mrs. Pugh, who has been training dogs for 14 years, said often it's the dog owner who is the source of the problem.

She explained that some people with money buy dogs as a status symbol and give them everything but training. As a result, she requires the owners to attend the sessions along with their dogs.

Theft Not Part Of Fat of Land

The young Montrealer came here to live off the land — but that can't include stealing food from a burned-out supermarket.

Stephen Alexander Kishewitsch, 24, who came to the area from Montreal at the end of June, pleaded guilty in provincial court today to theft of meat and biscuits worth $4 from the IGA Foodliner at 1860 Island Highway July 5.

The accused got into the store through a hole burned in the rear of the store in a $65,000 fire the day before.

Kishewitsch told Judge William Ostler he came here with the intention of living without money through the summer.

"And I may succeed in going completely into the bush yet," he said.

Ostler said there was nothing wrong with the man's approach — "Indeed, at your age, it might be wise" — but said he hoped the accused, who appeared to be of above-average intelligence, might eventually emerge into the mainstream of society.

Ostler gave the man a suspended sentence and placed him on six months' probation.

Grits Said Seeking Youth Vote

TORONTO (CP) — The Liberal party is preparing to involve the 18-24 age group, who have never before voted in a federal election, as actively as possible in the campaign for the expected fall election, according to The Globe and Mail.

The newspaper says it has learned that "secret campaign documents" prepared by the party's Ottawa headquarters staff indicate that the Liberals' "strongest source of support" lies in that group because of its "empathy with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's style and personality."

• Salt has a tendency to draw moisture from the meat and • Moisture is your main tenderizing ingredient and a chief source of natural flavour • Therefore loss of moisture due to salting means loss of juicyness — tenderness and flavour • If salting is desired — Do so only near the completion of the cooking time.

Orpheus Splash of Gimmickry

By VICTOR STANTON

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Gabriel Charpentier's Orpheus started off the Stratford festival's Third Stage program Tuesday night in a splash of theatrical gimmickry that was visually appealing but shallow.

The first production of a Canadian work in the festival's 20th season, the chamber opera is a retelling of the classic myth of Orpheus who retrieves his bride Eurydice from the underworld only to lose her again when he forgets a commandment not to look upon her as he leads her away.

The Charpentier version of the legend borrows from medieval church ritual and classical Japanese theatre as well as Greek mythology.

The result is a spectacle of color, poetry, song and dance, with the music more in the background than in traditional opera.

The character of Orpheus is split into three roles, for actor, singer and dancer. Director Andre Bressard explains in a program note that "Orpheus in his three representations is not simply a musician of ancient Greece; he is the embodiment of the artist and the idealist."

The Stratford production relies heavily on lighting effects, gymnastic choreography and sonorous enunciation to weave an atmosphere that at times comes close to pretentiousness.

The Third Stage, in its second year of operation, will present another musical work by a Canadian composer this season. Patria II: Requiems for the Party Girl by Murray Schafer, has its premiere Aug 23.

Other prorductions at the same theatre will be Betty Jane Wylie's new Canadian play, Mark, opening July 19 and a musical adaptation of the children's classic, Pinocchio, beginning a three-week run Aug. 2.

Two other openings conclude this year's festival roster. A production of Oliver Goldsmith's She Stoops to Conquer opens at the main festival Theatre July 25, to play in repertory with the kespearean plays As You Like It and King Lear, and with Alfred de Musset's Lorenzaccio.

Critics' comments on Orpheus:

John Kraglund, Toronto Globe and Mail: " . . . the tendency to fall asleep during the performance was in direct ratio to the quantity of words being sung or spoken . . . It is the visual side of the production, not the musical, which lingers in one's memory."

Urjo Kareda, Toronto Star: "The Third Stage, with Orpheus, retains its unique record of uncovering and hallowing a vein of solid, 14-carat kitsch . . . A pompous artistic non-entity . . ."

Harvey Chusid, Vancouver Sun: " . . . most of the mime and movement is stylized so self-consciously and with so little sense of purpose, that the performance seems much longer than its one hour and fifteen minute length."

Falling Arbutus Leaves Puzzle Summer Visitors

Named as one of the "superbly beautiful" forest trees of North America by an American writer, the Arbutus escapes notice by local gardeners until July when the two-year-old leaves drop.

Since the tree is classified as evergreen by retaining the five-inch dark green leaves all winter, this sudden leaf fall in summer is disconcerting. These are the older leaves which have been replaced by new, a habit substantially the same with all evergreen plants, both the broadleaved and the conifers or needle types.

Even visitors wonder at seeing the fallen leaves beneath Arbutus trees in July along the woodland edges and on streets where conservation-minded people treasure them. This is the only broadleaved evergreen tree which is native to Canada. No other occurs anywhere in the country. Its range is limited to southern coastal British Columbia in Canada and down the Pacific Coast of Washington to Northern California.

In woodland, and where it grows on rocky ledges above the sea in its northern range, we find it reaching 75 to 100 feet into generally moist air. Yet an English encyclopedia of gardening of 1928 gave it as a shrubby tree growing to 10 feet.

It is true that Arbutus menzieszii is found in twisted gnarled forms, often the result of burning or other injuries to the original taller tree form. Always there is beauty of line in its smooth-barked growth.

In earlier spring we admire the large conical clusters of small urn-shaped flowers at the tip of every growth. At least one reference calls them fragrant.

Even in the spring woods I have missed this fragrance, but then I must admit to being puzzled by a seven foot Arbutus menziesii seen close up in flower a few years ago. Until then, the delicate form of the flowers had escaped my casual observation of big trees.

This is not a tree for a tidy little garden with a lawn. Flaking bark in early spring, falling leaves in early summer, and birds enjoying the fruits as they ripen in fall may annoy you. If so, don't covet an Arbutus.

For the gardener who wants strength of beauty in line and color of tree limbs — summer and winter — who wants the shelter afforded by an evergreen tree — also summer and winter — Arbutus menziesii is the unique answer.

Be sure you get a one-year-old seedling, lifted carefully from a friend's property, soil around the roots, and grow it in a container until you find exactly the right spot where it can stay forever. A well-drained gravelly acid slope with shelter from wind while in its young stage will suit it well.

Opening lead: Six of ♣.

"The disaster that befell my poor wife, who was South, is obvious to you — she went down five tricks, doubled. But this story has a silver lining: I was not her partner. I was West.

"Since I'm sure you can't possibly respond to all the letters you get, don't worry about answering this one, unless, of course, you have a solution to the dilemma."

I'm not sure that I know what the "dilemma" is, unless possibly the suffering of a 900-point set by one's wife is considered to be a dilemma. The only solution I can conceive of — although I'm powerless to do anything about it in a practical way — is that the next time your wife holds a similar hand, she should try to arrange it that West, with his five-point hand, be her partner. She will then be able to fulfill a grand-slam contract in diamonds.

Getting serious about the deal, North's opening bid of one club is subject to severe criticism. He simply didn't have the value to open with one of a suit. Certainly the preferable call with his hand would have been a pre-emptive call of four clubs, or even five clubs. Had either of these bids been made initially, South would have known that North had at least seven clubs in his hand; and it is conceivable that South might then have suspected that a "misfit" existed.

Possibly South would now have stopped at merely five diamonds, which West would have doubled. South would then have gone down "only" four tricks, instead of the five-trick set she incurred at her actual six-diamond contract. While such a set would not be pleasant, it is nevertheless better to lose 700 points than 900.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"I'm writing to Elsie," said Ann. "What's the number of their new house?"

Greg thought a moment. "I forget, but I did notice something odd about it," he replied. "It's a four-figure figure number, and it's just 13 times what you get if you add its first two figures to its last two."

What is it, then?

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer:
"SCARES" was 123691.

Uplands Pairing Takes Golf Prize

The Uplands combination of Mrs. Marg Campbell and Mary McKinnon scored a gross 102 at Gorge Vale to take top honors in the annual district "mother-daughter" golf tournament.

Colwood's Ruth and Sydney Thomson also scored 102 but had to settle for runnerup honors after a countback.

Low net honors went to Gorge Vale's Flo McIntyre and Cindy Laglois, who scored an 83 to finish a half stroke ahead of Uplands' Thelma Kirk and Jean McKinnon.

Controversy Seen in Man. Labor Law

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's New Democratic Party government, which has been coming up with major and controversial legislation at a once-a-year pace since taking office three years ago, is keeping its average intact with a new labor relations bill.

The bill, given second reading by the legislature Monday, moved to the standing committee on industrial relations today for public representations and clause-by-clause study.

With nearly a dozen representatives of business, industry, labor and religious groups already slated to appear before the committee, deliberations may come close to rivalling the controversy aroused by the NDP's implementation of state-run auto insurance in 1970 and its municipal reorganization of Greater Winnipeg in 1971.

The bill, brought in less than three weeks ago as the current session neared the end of its fourth month, proposes a major overhaul in the province's labor laws. It is aimed generally at lessening government involvement in the collective-bargaining process while making it easier for employees to form unions.

Reaction to the bill from the opposition Conservatives and Liberals, chambers of commerce and employee associations has been a plea to the government to slow down its passage for between-sessions study.

WON'T EASE DEADLINE

So far Labor Minister A. R. Paulley, a long-time trade unionist and Premier Ed Schreyer's predecessor as leader of the NDP, has refused to alter his plans to pass the legislation before the end of the current session, expected later this month. The bill would come into effect Jan. 1.

There have been general criticisms of the bill as an attempt by the NDP to shore up its flagging support among the unions, but business and the opposition parties have also zeroed in on specific areas.

A provision to extend the right to strike to public employees has brought opposition even from those who support the labor movement, including independent MLA Joe Borowski, a former union organizer and cabinet minister.

Under the legislation, all organized employees except teachers, firemen and provincial civil servants will be given the right to strike. Mr. Paulley, who concedes he may be bucking the tide of public opinion, plans next year to give strike rights to those three groups if they request it.

Easing of certification requirements so that 35 rather than 50 per cent of employees have to be members of a union before a certification vote can be called has been generally accepted.

FEAR FLURRY OF STRIKES

However, shifting of onus to the employer to prove that he did not take action designed to impair formation of a union has not. Opposition and business spokesmen have called this a denial of the fundamental principle that a person is innocent until proven guilty.

Opponents have predicted a mushrooming of strikes if the legislature enacts a provision that would prevent an employer from firing a worker who refuses to do work that would help another employer overcome the effects of a legal strike or walkout.

Technological-change provisions in the bill have been condemned by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which says they might lead to a proliferation of strikes for "frivolous reasons."

The bill says that if an employer introduces a technological change that will affect terms and working conditions of a significant number of employees, the union can cancel the existing collective agreement and ask for a new one, backed up by the power to strike.

Opposition has also been expressed to the provisions under which an employee in a bargaining unit, whether or not he is a union member, must pay union dues.

Organized labor appears satisfied with the bill.

Len Stevens, president of the Manitoba Federation of Labor appeared to put his stamp of approval on it when he predicted some 75 per cent of Manitoba's working force will be organized in a few years if the bill's collective-bargaining provisions go through intact. At present, only about 25 per cent of eligible employees belong to unions.

Happy Ending to Dream

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

DUNCAN — Ron Francis, 43, of Duncan, has achieved a lifelong dream purchasing the 93-foot North Sea trawler Unda.

But the most exciting part of the purchase from Portsmouth scrap dealer and ship's broker Harry Pound was the 9,853-mile journey from England, Francis said.

The Unda and her crew arrived at Sandy Beach near Bamberton, immediately south of Mill Bay, a week ago after a five-week trip.

Francis' crew consisted of his 70-year-old retired father-in-law Louis Pedenait, of 3501 Saanich Road, Victoria; David Atkinson, 24, commercial fisherman from England; Peter Scharrer, a medical doctor from Germany on his way to Hawaii to serve an internship and Alec Hilton, also from England.

12½-DAY CROSSING

The trip included stops at Vego, Spain, Las Palmas on the Canary Islands followed by "nicest part of the trip," a 12½-day crossing of the Atlantic to Barbados.

There Francis took on Harry Adams, 18, who had never left his native island, as an additional crew member.

After going through the Panama Canal and stopping in Los Angeles the Unda lost two of her crew members when the doctor flew to Hawaii and Hilton flew back to England for a family reunion.

"It left us a bit short-handed but we managed even when we went through the toughest four days of the entire journey when the Pacific showed its ornery side."

Francis returned to his job as manager of Major Batteries in Duncan Monday, while his father-in-law returned home and Atkinson and Adams stayed on board the Unda.

Atkinson is looking for a similar expedition, preferably to return to England and bring more boats back, while Adams is trying to get a job on a freighter.

BETTER, CHEAPER

Francis, who has lived by the ocean and been around boats all of his life, said he had been searching for a boat like the Unda for 12 years through English yachting magazines.

"I wanted one from England because they are the better built boats and are cheaper to purchase," he said. "And there is always the enjoyable trip bringing it home."

In arranging the purchase of Unda and organizing the journey home, Francis had to make three trips to England in the past year.

Francis said he doesn't know much about the history of his sea-trawler except that she was built in Scotland in 1954, was overhauled in 1968 and since 1969 has been left idle "to sit and rust."

Pollution Inquiry Blasted

Public Denied Expression Of Philosophy—Federation

The B.C. Wildlife Federation has charged that the public hearings of the government pollution control branch are "a sham." In a newsletter to members, the federation said terms of reference of the hearings concerning logging and mining are so restrictive that public opinion is stifled.

This was borne out by the experience of several groups who made submissions to the Pollution Control Branch inquiry in March concerning technical measures for pollution control in the mining industry, the federation said. The inquiry was held in Vancouver and Cranbrook.

"Their briefs were first sifted by a panel, and 'non-technical' material not conforming strictly to the terms of reference of the inquiry was rejected."

The letter noted at least half the briefs submitted were cut to some degree. The B.C. Environmental Council lost five-sixths of its six-page submission.

"Another group was told that more than a quarter of its submission was not acceptable," it added. "Several groups seeking technical information from the mining industry were refused it, and thus were hamstrung in their honest attempts to meet the narrow terms of the inquiry."

BCWF also said the director of the Pollution Control Branch then ruled that there "could be no cross-examination in Vancouver briefs that had been presented earlier in Cranbrook."

The ruling cut off effectively any further discussion of smelter operations, it said.

"We feel it our duty to bring the shortcomoings and dangers of the Pollution Control Branch inquiries to the notice of the public," it added. "As public hearings, the inquiries are a sham."

The federation said this was the reason why it did not submitted a brief to the mining inquiry.

The federation said the public should have an opportunity to say at a public hearing how much pollution it can tolerate; what kind of an environment it wants to live in; how much risk it is willing to take and how much it is willing to pay to clean up and keep the environment.

New Drive Aimed At Mill Cleanup

DUNCAN — Cowichan Bay groups have joined forces to urge the federal and provincial governments to force Slegg Forest Products Ltd. to clean up its mill and surrounding tidal flats.

They want the governments to purchase land surrounding the mill through the new greenbelt legislation to protect the future of Cowichan Bay.

Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife said this morning he has been authorized by the Cowichan Bay Citizens' Group and the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club, of which he is vice-president, to announce they are solidly supporting North Cowichan Mayor Gerry Smith's actions in trying to get Slegg Brothers to clean up.

Although North Cowichan does not have the power to force the company to act, the Pollution Control Branch has promised to look into the complaints.

The condition of the mill "is a bloody crime," Quaife said. "It is a garbage dump with all of the debris and mill waste piled up all over the place."

He said the estuaries and tidal flats in Cowichan Bay are of the utmost importance to the community, salmon spawning and sports fishing.

Mill manager Tom Bowers said today his company has every intention of buying all of the debris in the "foreseeable future."

He said the mill waste is being used as landfill in order to reclaim land surrounding the mill.

"If people would only take the time to come and look," he said. "They always look at the worst side instead of the part that has already been reclaimed."

Bowers said the reclaimed area is about 15 acres that has mill waste buried under gravel. There has been waste sitting on about 30 acres for the past 18 months. People are complaining about this but it will be covered with gravel.

CANADA DRINKING MORE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians bought 394.5 million gallons of liquor, wine and beer in the year ended March 31, a 7.1 per cent increase from the previous year, Statistics Canada reported today.

The volume works out to roughly 20 gallons for every man, woman and child.

That's about $93 for each man, women and child.

The total volume includes 349.7 million gallons of beer, 19.5 million gallons of wine and 25.4 million gallons of liquor.

'Borrow at Home' Ont. Told

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Finance Minister John Turner says he received little satisfaction Tuesday when he met with Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough to discuss a federal government request that provincial governments borrow money at home.

Mr. Turner said Ontario accounted for one-quarter of the $600 million borrowed abroad by provinces since April and this total, along with $700 million borrowed privately by Canadians, is contributing to upward, unstable pressure on the Canadian dollar.

The bulk of the money borrowed so far by Ontario—for provincial and Ontario Hydro bonds—has come from West Germany.

Mr. McKeough refused to comment on the federal request.

Mr. Turner said that while Ontario understood the federal position, the provincial treasurer told him Ontario will continue to borrow in what it considers the best interests of Ontario taxpayers.

Also attending the meeting with Mr. Turner were Charles MacNaughton, chairman of the province's management board, provincial Health Minister Richard Potter and Robert Welch, provincial secretary for social develpmeont.

Mr. Welch and Dr. Potter said they were interested in Mr. Turner's overtures towards a new federal-provincial scheme for sharing health costs.

Mr. Turner said he proposed a formula that committed Ottawa to sharing the costs of any increase above the gross national product rate but he would not outline the formula.

Battery-Powered Mini-Car Produced by Students

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—After a year of designing, assembling and projected costs of about $30,000, a 3,000-pound, battery-operated mini-car produced by university students here is ready to roll.

The project, planned as an congestion, is a joint venture answer to traffic pollution and by students of the University of Western Ontario faculty of engineering and Fanshawe College of Applied Arts and Technology.

Dave Jacques, a machinist from Thamesford, Ont., and the only non-student on the project, said in a recent interview that most of the problems have been worked out and that the car should be ready for preliminary trials in Toronto July 22.

He said the chassis is a hybrid incorporating a Volkswagen front suspension, a Datsun rear suspension and an original frame designed and built at the university.

An electric motor over the front wheels drives a variable output hydraulic pump which sends hydraulic fluid through hoses, turning a hydraulic motor in the rear of the car. The motor powers rear wheels.

Work on the body is about three weeks behind the chassis construction but should be ready for tests at the University of Toronto, said Keith Zerebecki, a 24-year-old mechanical engineering graduate student and project head.

He said the car is being prepared for the Urban Vehicle Design Competition to be held Aug. 7 to 13 at the General Motors proving grounds in Warren, Mich.

The competition is this year's version of the Clean-Air Car Race held in 1970 between Cambridge, Mass., and Pasadena, Calif.

Mr. Zerebecki said the hydraulic drive used on the electric car can be used so effectively for breaking that a "free-wheeling" feature had to be designed to keep the car from maging instant stops when the driver's foot was taken off the accelerator.

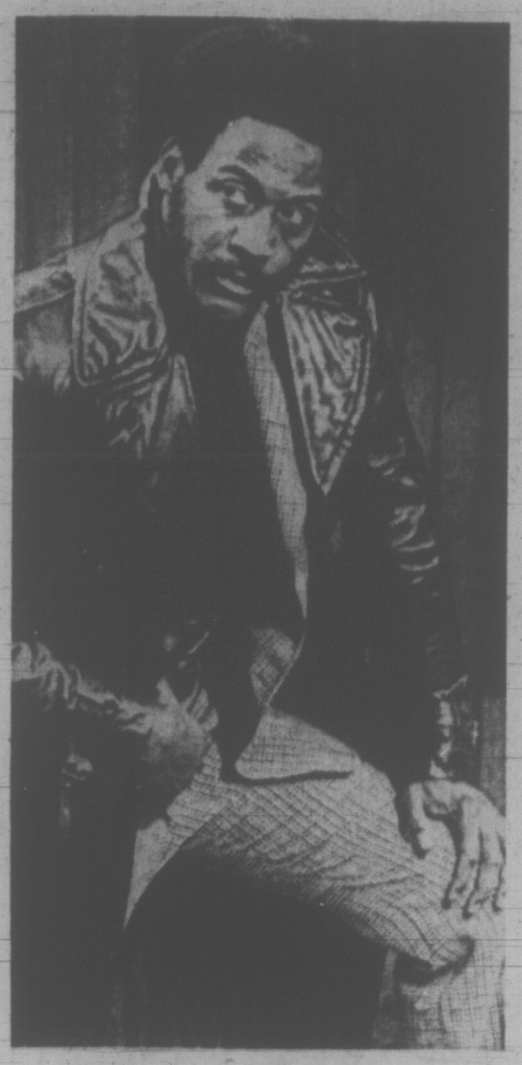
Black...It's Something More than Beautiful



Roundtree . . . trend-setter

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the current film Shaft's Big Score, the black private detective hero scorns a New York police investigator, also black: My mother told me to say away from black honkies with big flat feet."

Five years ago, such a put down of whites and blacks who work for the white establishment might htve caused outrage.

Today such scenes are common. And not merely in low-budget exploitation films. Films made by blacks and aimed primarily at the black market are being financed on sizable budgets by major studios.

This is the result of a black revolution in the movie industry. Film companies have discovered belatedly that millions of dollars can be made by aiming movies primarily at the big-city black audience. If the movies contain enough quality, they also will draw whites.

Hence, a bonanza such as MGM produced last year with Shaft. The film grossed $18 million in the United States and Canada. It was MGM's only big hit in 1971.

The negro's advent to film prominence was a long time coming.

During the earliest years of movies, the black was portrayed as either servile, as in various versions of Uncle Tom's Cabin, or lazy, as in two 1910 series, Rastus and Sambo.

The black as villain was exploited by D. W. Griffith in the 1915 Birth of Nation. Griffith was so astonished by the outcry of prejudice that he made the epic Intolerance in his own defence.

The talkie period brought some all black films: Hallelujah, by MGM in 1929; The Green Pastures, Warner Brothers, 1936; Stormy Weather, 20th Fox, 1943; Cabin in the Sky, MGM, 1943; Carmen Jones, Preminger, 1954; Porgy and Bess, Goldwyn, 1959; Raisin in the Sun, Columbia, 1961.

None of these films was a financial success, and producers over the years adopted the maxim tsat "colored pictures don't sell."

There was scant work for black actors during the first 50 years of film history. A few became well known, largely in roles as menials: Clarence Muse, Louise Beavers, Bill Robinson, Ethel Waters, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson. Hattie McDaniel won an Oscar for her role as Mammy in Gone with the Wind.

Others were relegated to roles in which they appeared incredibly lazy or frightened of ghosts.

Paul Robeson played a few leading roles in the 1930s, mostly in non-Hollywood films such as The Emperor Jones, and Sanders of the River.

The Nassau-born actor had been in movies since No Way Out in 1950, but he seemed destined for billing under such stars as Tony Curtis and Rock Hudson. Then in 1963 he starred in Lilies of the Field, and won the Oscar as best actor.

He later appeared in such moneymakers as A Patch of Blue, To Sir with Love, In the Heat of the Night and Guess Who's Coming to Dinner. Always he portrayed a successful black in the white world.

"The industry discovered something from Poitier's films," says Jim Brown, the pro footballer who became a black film star. "Over half the patronage came from blacks in the big cities.

"That pointed out two things to the producers: that the industry needed some black stars; and that dignity was needed in the portrayal of blacks on the screen."

Carver, Pastor At Odds

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Indian artist Simon Charlie says he doesn't even know what a fig leaf looks like.

The 10-foot wooden statue of an Indian clothed only in a cape and a coast Salish hat was commissioned for the front of the new municipal building. But Rev. Robinson says the statue violates Christian principles, morality and decency.

In protest, he rounded up 40 signatures from members of All People's Church and presented the petition to Reeve Robert Williams Monday.

"A lot of Christians wouldn't want their children to see it" Rev. Robinson told the reeve.

STATUE STAYS

However, Reeve Williams has decided that statue will stay, although it will remain under wraps until the building is officially opened by Ontario Premier William Davis.

Mr. Charlie says that "if you have a dirty mind you can see anything as dirty."

"Besides," said the 52-year-old artist, "there just aren't fig leaves on any Indian carvings."

He said there was no mention of a fig leaf in the order he received for the statue.

"I was told they wanted one just like the one outside the Indian pavilion at Expo '67, so that's what I made."

The statue, called Kwa Kiuth, is a replica of statues used as lodge poles in Indian lodges to welcome visitors.

Aid for Indians

VANCOUVER (CP) — The New Democratic Party's provincial council Sunday approved in principle a seven-point program aimed at improving the living conditions of British Columbia Indians.

The program includes low interest loans, special educational programs, legal aid and counselling programs, an Indian foster home program, aid in obtaining land for housing, greater involvement in all government departments and strengthening of the human rights act to protect Indian rights.

Petition Passed

SURREY (CP) — A group of Surrey and Coquitlam parents who have formed a Protect Our Children committee have sent Prime Minister Trudeau a petition containing 5,201 signatures demanding an end to parole and day releases for prisoners convicted of sexual offences.

A man serving a prison sentence for a sexual offence has been charged with the slaying last month of Tanya Busch, 7. The man was free from prison on a pass at the time of the slaying.

Astronauts Disciplined For Caper

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States space agency disciplined the three Apollo 15 astronauts Tuesday for carrying 400 unauthorized postal covers to the moon and back last July and then turning 100 or them over to an acquaintance in West Germany.

The 100 moon-stamped envelopes later apparently were sold to stamp collectors for $1,500 each, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

NASA said after an investigation that astronauts David Scott, Alfred Worden and James Irwin "exercised poor judgment in their action."

"Therefore they will be reprimanded and their actions will be given due consideration in their selection for future assignments," the agency said.

Dr. George Low, NASA deputy administrator, commented::

"Astronauts are under extreme stress in the months preceding a flight to the moon, and their poor judgment in carrying the unauthorized covers must be considered in this light. Nonetheless, NASA cannot condone these actions."

NASA said it had learned that the Apollo 15 crew had agreed at one time to provide 100 covers from their forthcoming mission to the acquaintance in return for establishment of a "trust fund" for their children.

"After the covers had been given to the acquaintance, however, they realized, on their own, that this was improper and declined to accept either the trust fund or the alternative offer of stamps in exchange for the 100 postal covers," NASA said.

The Apollo 15 crew, as had those on earlier moon missions, had NASA's permission, within established procedures, to carry personal souvenir-type items, including some postal covers.

The permission was granted with the condition that the articles be retained by the astronauts or given to personal friends. They were not to be used for commercial or personal gain, NASA said.

No Middle Tax Rise

HAMILTON (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Tuesday night the government does not intend to increase taxes for middle-income groups as he was reported to have said in a recent Quebec speech.

"I did not say we were going to tax the middle-income groups more," Munro told a news conference, "and we don't intend to do that."

He said he was attempting to point out that the cost of applying some programs to all people without exception would greatly increase cost, mainly to middle-income groups.

89th YEAR No. 28 ★ VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1972 10 CENTS DAILY, 20 CENTS SATURDAY

ABOUT THAT RAIN...

Sunny Victoria is getting a rainy reputation.

Gonzales weather officials reported a total rainfall so far this month of .54 inches — normal for the entire month is .57.

And counting June's rain, the total is boosted to 1.47 inches. Last month Victoria was blessed with 9.3 inches, while the normal is 5.8.

Victoria airport weather officials predict sunshine by Friday, saying an "improving trend should begin Thursday."

Thursday should look better, they said, with morning showers and a cloudy afternoon dropping "the odd rainfall."

Although July began well, with sunshine and higher-than-normal temperatures for the first four days, rain and lower-than-normal temperatures, which averaged about 55 degrees, took over on Day 5.

Convention Gives Nod To McGovern Platform

Times News Services

MIAMI BEACH — The Democratic national convention gave Senator George McGovern today the kind of platform he sought, rebuffing a personal plea by Gov. George Wallace from his wheelchair for a strikingly different party document.

Reflecting in general the views of the man whose nomination now is assured, the platform calls for immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, closing of tax loopholes, replacing the welfare system with income grants and recognition of busing as one means of achieving quality in education.

The convention gave the Alabama governor, crippled by a gunman's bullets, a two-minute ovation when he was wheeled to the podium.

It listened to his argument that it should appeal to the "75 to 80 per cent of the American people who are against senseless, asinine busing of school children," and, in other respects as well, largely rewrite the draft platform.

But later it shouted down, one by one, the Wallace proposals.

An even clearer demonstration of McGovern power came when the convention defeated a number of amendments, with broad-based support, but which—so the candidate's emissaries said—would be embarrassing in the campaign.

These included proposed planks favoring liberal abortion policies, non-discrimination against homosexuals, and major goals of the National Welfare Rights Organization—a $6,500 income guarantee for a family of four, rollback of rents, government takeover and repair of sub-standard housing.

Similarly defeated was a call for repealing the income-tax code and substituting a system of lower tax rates, personal credits, but no deductions.

McGovern remained out of public view today, writing an acceptance speech and studying a small list of vice-presidential possibilities headed by Edward M. Kennedy.

But the Massachusetts senator has disavowed any interest in running on the national ticket this year and if he does reject the expected offer, McGovern will turn to a list believed to contain no more than five names, including a labor leader, a governor and at least two senators.

However, the Massachusetts senator never has said absolutely that he would not accept the No. 2 spot on the ticket.

He said he would consider a run if convinced that was the only way President Nixon could be beaten.

Rains Hit W. Van

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Several houses were evacuated and the Upper Levels Highway between here and Horseshoe Bay was closed today as more than three inches of rain overnight washed down rocks and mud from slopes above the road.

Basements and carports flooded and drainage systems backed up on streets just below the highway, and a weather office spokesman warned there was more rain to come.

July records for rainfall were set overnight at Vancouver and Abbotsford in the lower mainland and at Tofino and other western Vancouver Island centres. (See also Page 3).

Water spilled over Cleveland Dam in North Vancouver and observers said the Capilano River was the highest they had ever seen it.

Norm Paquette of West Vancouver said water poured down his street "like a river."

"My driveway has tons of debris on it," he said. "The water is carrying rocks and mud. Some of those rocks must be three feet wide."

Cleveland Dam gauges recorded 3.26 inches of rain between 4 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. today, a record for July.

At Vancouver International Airport, 1.53 inches of rain were recorded in the 24 hours to 8 a.m. today compared with the previous July 24-hour record of 1.45 inches. Average rainfall for the whole month of July is 1.17 inches.

Other July 24-hour records were set in Abbotsford, where 1.4 inches of rain fell, at Tofino, which recorded 4.45 inches, at Estevan Point with 4.06 inches and at Spring Island, where 2.83 inches of rain fell.

The weather office says a high-altitude flow of westerly winds is carrying weather systems across the Pacific from southern Japan. The systems are travelling in a straight line to beat down on the coast one after the other.

Pelting Rain, Armed Soldiers Cool Irish Tempers at Parade

BELFAST (Reuter) — Protestants paraded with banging drums and flapping banners in the traditional Orange Day marches throughout Northern Ireland today amid fears of renewed conflict.

The marches set off in an atmosphere charged by three more killings during the night. One of the victims was a Protestant youth shot down on a street in Portadown, 25 miles outside Belfast, and there was apprehension of a revenge blow by the Protestant para-military Ulster Defence Association.

As the marchers streamed through the heart of Belfast under a steady rain, most of the city's Roman Catholic minority remained in their own district.

Some 17,000 British soldiers backed by 8,000 police and militia men stood guard in case of an assault on the marchers by the Roman Catholic-based Irish Republican Army.

In the present high state of tension authorities believed such an assault could blow up into full-scale conflict.

At several points in Belfast, groups of blue-jacketed club-carrying young men could be seen on the fringes of the procession. They described themselves as UDA commandos.

The rain doused some of the excitement customary on the Orange Day parades which are held to celebrate a triumph of Protestant arms in 1690 when Roman Catholic King James II was beaten by William of Orange at the Battle of Boyne.

As the marchers trudged through town, plastic raincoats obscured the dark coats and orange flashes which are a uniform of the Orange order. Rain dripped off bowler hats — another uniform requirement — and sodden banners hung heavy on their poles.

But the bandsmen pounded out Protestant tunes with gusto all along the five-mile march to a rallying point at Endenderry just outside Belfast.

The traditional rallying point at Finaghy Field was not used this year, because police considered it was too visible to snipers from Roman Catholic districts.

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly 4,000 Ontario Hydro office workers left their jobs this morning to join more than 7,400 other workers already out on strike against the public utility.

NET SCOOPS STRAY FISH

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — An escaped prisoner from Collins Bay penitentiary was captured today when he walked into an intense search area 15 miles west of here where police were looking for nine of 14 prisoners who escaped from the maximum-security Millhaven prison Monday night.

Police said John Singleton, 30, left a labor gang Tuesday morning, but was caught today when he was spotted walking along CNR tracks two miles north of Millhaven.

Singleton was serving three years for fraud and parole revocation.

Hospital Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Despite a provincial law that forbids hospital workers to strike, the Canadian Union of General Employees, representing about 650 non-medical workers at Toronto Western Hospital, broke off contract talks today and set up picket lines.

Boyd McAulay, executive director of Toronto Western, said attempts will be made to transfer some of the 700 patients. Supervisory staff and some workers who did not strike would try to carry on with hospital duties.

Under the Ontario Hospital Disputes Act, it is illegal for hospital workers to strike and penalties can reach $1,000 a day for individuals and $10,000 a day for the union.

It is the second hospital strike in Toronto in two weeks. Workers at St. Joseph's Hospital staged a 10½-hour walkout June 28. A contract has since been signed and there were no charges against the workers.

New Talks Begin In IWA Conflict

Representatives of both sides in the coast woodworking industry contract dispute met today in Vancouver.

The move followed a decision by member companies of Forest Industrial Relations to postpone a ratification vote on a new contract with the International Woodworkers of America until after a number of local issues are resolved.

These local issues, involving 2,500 of the 28,000 coast loggers and millworkers, include a variety of matters, such as additional job rates, longshoring agreements and an end of piece-rates in at least one shingle mill, at individual companies.

John Billings, president of the Forest Industrial Relations, said terms and conditions of the tentative general agreement with the IWA "appeared to be acceptable" to the 115 companies FIR represents.

"However, because of a number of the operations had been pulled out of master negotiations by the International Woodworkers of America for the settlement of local issues, the industry representatives decided to postpone a formal ratification vote today," he said Tuesday.

Earlier, the IWA accepted the proposed settlement by 53 per cent with roughly half the members not voting. Picket lines, however, will remain in effect until the industry ratifies the new agreement. The new contract includes a wage increase of 73 cents an hour over two years plus fringe benefits. Base rate was $3.72.

This morning's meeting was requested by FIR.

LOUSY MUSICIAN BUT FINE BANDIT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It was a crazy mixed-up robbery, complete with musical accompaniment and a quick shuffle, but the robber had the last laugh.

Police suspect the robber capped off a string of four holdups in Hollywood and four in the San Fernando Valley all in one night — by sticking up the Studio City bar shortly after midnight Tuesday.

After forcing nine customers to lie on the floor, the bandit took over the bass drum, accompanying the regular entertainment, an organist.

One of the customers jumped up and ran out while the robber was busy with his bass. The bandit chased him and fired three shots, all of which missed.

Waiting for him outside was the robber, who took $290 and vanished again.

$4B Gas Contract

Doug Lougheed, vice-president and general manager, producing, confirmed Wednesday that a gas-purchase contract had been signed with Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line of Detroit, and Natural Gas Pipeline of Chicago.

Killer Floods Rake Much of Japan

TOKYO (Reuter) — Floods swept unchecked through many Japanese towns today under the continuous battering of rainstorms that have caused at least 243 deaths, with other 67 persons missing in the last week.

Near Tokyo, a hot-spring resort was destroyed by floodwaters, but most of some 450 residents fled to safety in surrounding hills as their homes disappeared beneath swirling floodwaters.

BUMPER CROP

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An experimental safety car devised by UCLA engineering student Dan Bell has bumpers filled with an edible material that cushions the impact of crashes.

Bell says the material is cheap, light, porous, readily available, requires no unusual skills to process, will withstand a 5-mile-per-hour crash without damage—and besides, in an emergency, can be eaten.

The wonder material? Popcorn.

Fischer Concedes

Fischer, in a hopeless position, resigned. He stood up, folded his score sheet and walked out of the Reykjavik Sports Palace.

The decision confirmed the judgment of the experts who considered Fischer was in a difficult position when the game was adjourned after 40 moves Tuesday night. The 40 moves were made in four hours and 34 minutes of play.

The victory gave Spassky a 1-0 lead in the 24-game match and an important psychological advantage. Fischer has never beaten Spassky. His winless streak against the Russian now stands at six games.

After the overnight adjournment, the game was resumed this afternoon.

Spassky's 41st move was written on a slip of paper, put in a sealed envelope at the close of play Tuesday night and given to chief referee Lothar Schmid of West Germany. Schmid ceremoniously opened the envelope today and made Spassky's move.

The two competitors, their seconds and chess enthusiasts throughout the world spent part of the overnight break analysing possibilities for the 11 pieces remaining on the green-and-white chessboard in Reykjavik's sports hall: king and five pawns for Fischer; king, bishop and three pawns for Spassky.

The match had appeared headed for a draw until Fischer tried to seize the initiative on his 29th move.

The lanky challenger galloped his bishop down a long black diagonal to snatch an unprotected pawn Spassky had offered. A few moves later the bishop was trapped and lost in exchange for two pawns.

Analysing the game for The Associated Press, international grandmaster Isaac Kashdan termed Fischer's move "a rare miscalculation by the American genius."

Jumbo Ferry Conversion Nears Tender Call

Times Staff

The provincial government is expected to call tenders soon for the conversion of the B.C. Ferries' Queen of Burnaby into the fleet's first jumbo ferry.

An official silence has been clamped on the work done to date by the Victoria company of Case Existological Laboratories Ltd.

A spokesman of the firm said it has been ordered not to reveal any information unless given permission by the B.C. Ferries' operations department. The company has been working on conversion plans for the ferry.

But it is known that the ferry has been inspected by Ottawa representatives of the Canadian Steamship Inspectors and found to be suitable for the conversion.

Like the other four ferries "stretched" before her, she will have an 84-foot midsection added.

In addition, however, she will have an extra deck added that will be usely solely for car storage. This gives her a capacity for 300 cars, 100 more than those ferries converted to date.

The main deck will be completely utilized for catering services, having a large cafeterial and a dining room, the galleys and administrative space being located in the centre.

The Queen of Burnaby will be used on the run between Nanaimo's Departure Bay and Horseshoe Bay on the mainland.

Because of her unusually high car-carrying capacity, the Queen of Burnaby will require increased space and facilities at the two terminals.

"I sent a letter to the minister of highways (W. D. Black) two weeks ago," Ney said, "asking that it be borne in mind that whatever changes are made don't interfere with the privacy of the residential area close by and the environment."

"The minister replied that he had advised his engineers to keep this in mind. The very fact that he has acted so promptly is an indication that something is cooking."

Ney also said that he had been assured that "jumbo-ization" of the Queen of Burnaby will begin this year.

He noted that modernization of the Horseshoe Bay facilities had already been done.

It was announced earlier this year that two jumbo ferries would be assigned to the Nanaimo-West Vancouver run. The other ferry to be converted is the Queen of Nanaimo.

SOME TOURISTS LIKE THE RAIN

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

When you only have a week of vacation and it buckets down rain — what do you do?

Don and Debbie Cross are going home.

Home is Portland where they left on the weekend for their first glimpse of Victoria.

"It looks very wet."

Elsewhere the tourist industry was at a crossroad as the rains continued to pelt down.

Mike Heppell of the Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau said that there was a slight dip in the number of tourists at the booth Tuesday but was full of his usual optimism.

"The rain won't last for ever," he said. "Besides it's an ill wind that blows nobody good. With the rain, there are fewer people camping and more in hotels and motels.

"There are fewer people at the beaches and more shopping in stores.

"We are getting a lot of inquiries here asking why we don't do something about the weather.

"Some of the tourists seem to like it. I saw some people dancing around in the rain yesterday. They were from Arizona, where they only get two inches of rain a year. It's a real novelty for them."

boat from Seattle were a bit apprehensive this morning about the continuing rain.

"The crowds seem to be holding all right yesterday but we don't know what it will be like today and the rest of the week if the rain continues. We are still carrying the usual load of about 1,000 people so far."

One tourist who decided to tough it out is Joseph Gibson of Los Angeles.

"I've been sitting in my motel room reading the papers — all the papers," he said, pointing to a huge stack in the corner.

"I'm retired and I'm eventually going to go over to Vancouver to visit my daughter there but I'm looking around here for the week — mostly driving around. Possible clearing by Friday.

"Wet? Sure it's wet here. Too wet! But Los Angeles is too dry. Never rains for six months of the year down there. A real fire hazard.

"You know, I get tired of fighting the traffic jams down there. I might like to move up here, despite the rain."

Meanwhile, the weather office gave only a glimmer of hope to the tourist industry.

The long-range forecast:

HELLO RAIN and goodbye Victoria say Don and Debbie Cross of Portland. They had planned to spend week here but packed it up after one day when rain wouldn't let up. They are on one-week vacation. (Bill Halkett Photo)

Reserve Protects Oaks

The picturesque Garry Oak, declining due to urbanization and man's indifference, has been given some protection to preserve it in its natural habitat.

The B.C. government has set aside an ecological reserve of oaks on a 160-acre parcel of land adjoining Maxwell Park on Salt Spring Island.

The trees, some with trunks more than 25 inches in diameter, will be permitted to grow undisturbed with associated plants.

The ecological reserve is one of 11 established since May 1971, according to David Borthwick, deputy minister of lands.

"We now have 39 ecological reserves in scattered parts of the province," he said. "We hope to have 100 by 1975."

Ecological reserves should not be confused with parks or wildlife management areas. It is land reserved to protect outstanding samples of areas where natural processes are to be allowed to proceed undisturbed for future study by biologists, foresters and soil specialists.

Some reserves have also been established to protect rare and endangered native plants or animals in their natural habitat. For example, Solander Island, off Cape Cook, Vancouver Island, is reserved only to protect the marine and bird life.

The Salt Spring Island ecological reserve is timely as there is no protected natural grove of Garry Oaks on south Vancouver Island. The species is limited in range. It is chiefly confined to the Saanich Peninsula and the Gulf Islands.

Borthwick said another ecological reserve has been established at Takla Lake, 150 miles northwest of Prince George, because it is the most northern area where Douglas fir is found. The reserve, comprising 650 acres, was suggested by the B.C. Forest Service.

At Osoyoos Lake in the interior 10 acres of desert land was set aside as an ecological reserve.

The reason: undisturbed desert land is becoming rare in B.C., and already some plants and animals adapted to arid areas are near extinction.

What Does Waldo Know?

Does Industrial Development Minister Waldo Skillings know something Premier Bennett doesn't know?

At a press conference Tuesday Skillings declared suddenly, while discussing another topic, that there will be an election called "momentarily."

But the premier said later he hasn't heard about that.

Skillings was asked at the press conference if his department was planning to send a trade mission to China.

"I can't make any statement at this time because as you know there is going to be an election momentarily . . . and after the election is over more statements will be made."

Premier Bennett was called at his Kelowna home a few hours later and told of Skillings' statement.

"I am sure the minister doesn't know when the election will be called because I don't know."

Other political leaders are predicting that Skillings is not far off the mark. Most of the money is on a late August date, which would mean the announcemnet must come before too long.

Depending on how holidays fall, there must be from 35 to 38 days between the time the election writ is issued and polling day.

Elections have in the past 20 years been called about every three years, which would make 1972 a likely voting year. The last election was August 27, 1969.

Cost Cuts CTF Protests

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Provincial governments are undermining the economic position of teachers throughout the country, say directors of the Canadian Teachers' Federation.

In a report to the federation's annual meeting here this week, the CTF board warns that hard-won rights of collective bargaining are being reduced as governments cut back on education costs.

'71 Unemployment Cost Put at $5 Billion

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada fell nearly $5 billion behind what is could have produced last year if, in the view of international economists, it had had relatively full employment.

The country's gross national product—the total value of all goods and services produced in a year—was $93.1 billion last year.

If it hadn't been for unemployment and industrial slack, GNP should have been about $98 billion.

The figures on the gap are given in a new publication of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, a 23-member international body based in Paris which makes frequent surveys of the economic performance of the world's leading industrialized countries.

The report released Wednesday in Paris shows that Canada only slightly improved on its economic performance last year in relation to its potential output. The United Kingdom improved its performance considerably, while more slack developed in the U.S.

Japan had the lowest level of unemployment of the four countries surveyed, but for the second year experienced a big increase in unused industrial capacity.

Canadian Ownership in Malaspina Queried

VANCOUVER (CP) — The percentage of Canadian ownership in Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd. was questioned Tuesday as the Public Utilities Commission resumed a hearing into five applications to build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island from the mainland.

Egerton Warren King of Edmonton, Malaspina's president, agreed with a statement that all the preferred shares and 87 per cent of the common stock of Canadian Utilities Ltd., owner of Malaspina, is held by International Utilities of Maryland.

King said his company plans to keep firm control of Malaspina either by majority ownership or de facto control through being the largest shareholder. He said the company's share probably will be raised by sale of an issue of common stock, although it could be taken from earned reserves.

The discussion also returned to how Malaspina would be affected by a plan of British Columbia Hydro, another applicant, to step up power supplies to the Island with a new underwater cable that would make thermal plants unnecessary at the present time.

Asked if Malaspina could continue its application if there were no thermal load, King replied:

"No, I don't think we could for a minute ... if that market isn't there we are looking at a totally different situation."

Locke noted that 40 per cent of the sales projection was for thermal plant supply, and another 20 per cent to supply Port Mellon and Woodfibre by a spur from Powell River.

BLACK-ONLY PARTY FOR SOUTH AFRICA

PIETERMARITZBURG (Reuter) — A new political party for non-whites, the Black Peoples Convention, was formed Monday night after a three-day conference attended by about 100 delegates from all parts of South Africa.

Explaining the aims of the organization, a spokesman said "the object of the convention, which is only open to black members, is to unite South African blacks into a black political organization which would seek to realize their liberation and emancipation from both psychological and physical oppression.

"The convention will operate outside the white government-created systems, structures and institutions, and will not seek election into these."

Ottawa Feeds Ducks

OTTAWA (FP) — The federal government is ready to put up $5 million for a five-year federal - provincial program it has proposed to cope with the problem of crop depredation by waterfowl on the prairies.

Environment Minister Jack Davis and Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson announced the multi-million dollar fund Tuesday.

The program will go into operation this year if it is accepted by the provinces. Annual damage by ducks is estimated at $6 million.

During the first year of the program's operation Ottawa would put up $1 million to be divided between a joint federal-provincial lure crop program and — as an interim measure — the existing provincial crop damage compensation programs.

Similar amount would be available for the following four years of the plan. Damage to grain crops would be reduced by lure crops under the agreement, said the ministers.

The remaining damage would be covered by a form of crop insurance to farmers which would be negotiated with the provinces. The three prairie provinces would match the federal contribution to this program, if agreements are reached.—

Board Loses Bid

REGINA (CP) — Moosomin School Unit Board today lost a bid to halt board of reference hearings into the dismissal of Margaret Gordon, the Grade 9 teacher who allegedly allowed her class to read a sex story.

Mr. Justice R. A. MacDonald of Court of Queen's Bench handed down a ruling today, dismissing an application by the school board to invalidate the hearings.

Noise Protested

EDMONTON (CP) — City Council will ask the Canadian Transport Commission to force Canadian National Railways to reduce the noise at its Calder hump yard or relocate the facility.

Council, at a meeting Monday night, approved a motion calling for the action because the railway's efforts to reduce the noise at the yard in northwest Edmonton has not shown "appreciable success."

Error Admitted

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer admitted in the Manitoba legislature he was wrong in earlier information he gave the house about the price paid by a Toronto company for shares in Tantalum Mining Corp.

However, he also told the legislature that Liberal Leader I. H. Asper, who raised the issue about the cost of the Tantalum shares, also had the wrong information. Schreyer said after double-checking the facts "both of us are in error to some degree."

Expansion Approved

EDMONTON (CP) — The University of Alberta, troubled recently in its expansion program, has again given the green light to new building plans.

The university's planning committee, in a report to general faculties council, has recommended that three projects be given top priority and that planning and development activity on them be resumed immediately. The three projected buildings are for agriculture, medical sciences, and business and administration.

Rabies Warning

EDMONTON (CP) — It has been more than a year since a domestic animal was diagnosed as rabid in Alberta but this is no reason for the public to become complacent, a provincial veterinarian said.

Dr. G. R. Whenham, head of the Alberta Veterinary Services Division field services branch and a member of the Central Rabies Control Committee, said rabies still is prevalent in Saskatchewan and "could cross the border into Alberta at any time."

Elevators Organize

WINNIPEG (CP) — Companies operating grain elevators in Western Canada have announced the formation of the Western Grain Elevator Association.

The new organization will deal with grain handling only and will not become involved in grain marketing policy or promotion of sales. Representatives of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta wheat pools, United Grain Growers and five other companies attended a founding meeting.

89th YEAR No. 28 VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1972 ★★★★ 10 CENTS DAILY, 20 CENTS SATURDAY

ABOUT THAT RAIN...

Sunny Victoria is getting a rainy reputation.

Gonzales weather officials reported a total rainfall so far this month of .54 inches — normal for the entire month is .57.

And counting June's rain, the total is boosted to 1.47 inches. Last month Victoria was blessed with 9.3 inches, while the normal is 5.8.

Victoria airport weather officials predict sunshine by Friday, saying an "improving trend should begin Thursday."

Thursday should look better, they said, with morning showers and a cloudy afternoon dropping "the odd rainfall."

Although July began well, with sunshine and higher-than-normal temperatures for the first four days, rain and lower-than-normal temperatures, which averaged about 55 degrees, took over on Day 5.

Convention Gives Nod To McGovern Platform

Times News Services

MIAMI BEACH — The Democratic national convention gave Senator George McGovern today the kind of platform he sought, rebuffing a personal plea by Gov. George Wallace from his wheelchair for a strikingly different party document.

Reflecting in general the views of the man whose nomination now is assured, the platform calls for immediate withdrawal from Vietham, closing of tax loopholes, replacing the welfare system with income grants and recognition of busing as one means of achieving quality in education.

The convention gave the Alabama governor, crippled by a gunman's bullets, a two-minute ovation when he was wheeled to the podium.

It listened to his argument that it should appeal to the "75 to 80 per cent of the American people who are against senseless, asinine busing of school children," and, in other respects as well, largely rewrite the draft platform.

But later it shouted down, one by one, the Wallace proposals.

An even clearer demonstration of McGovern power came when the convention defeated a number of amendments, with broad-based support, but which—so the candidate's emissaries said—would be embarrassing in the campaign.

These included proposed planks favoring liberal abortion policies, non-discrimination against homosexuals, and major goals of the National Welfare Rights Organization—a $6,500 income guarantee for a family of four, rollback of rents, government takeover and repair of sub-standard housing.

Similarly defeated was a call for repealing the income-tax code and substituting a system of lower tax rates, personal credits, but no deductions.

McGovern remained out of public view today, writing an acceptance speech and studying a small list of vice-presidential possibilities headed by Edward M. Kennedy.

But the Massachusetts senator has disavowed any interest in running on the national ticket this year and if he does reject the expected offer, McGovern will turn to a list believed to contain no more than five names, including a labor leader, a governor and at least two senators.

However, the Massachusetts senator never has said absolutely that he would not accept the No. 2 spot on the ticket.

He said he would consider a run if convinced that was the only way President Nixon could be beaten.

Rains Hit W. Van

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Several houses were evacuated and the Upper Levels Highway between here and Horseshoe Bay was closed today as more than three inches of rain overnight washed down rocks and mud from slopes above the road.

Basements and carports flooded and drainage systems backed up on streets just below the highway, and a weather office spokesman warned there was more rain to come.

July records for rainfall were set overnight at Vancouver and Abbotsford in the lower mainland and at Tofino and other western Vancouver Island centres. (See also Page 3).

Water spilled over Cleveland Dam in North Vancouver and observers said the Capilano River was the highest they had ever seen it.

"My driveway has tons of debris on it," he said. "The water is carrying rocks and mud. Some of those rocks must be three feet wide."

Cleveland Dam gauges recorded 3.26 inches of rain between 4 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. today, a record for July.

At Vancouver International Airport, 1.53 inches of rain were recorded in the 24 hours to 8 a.m. today compared with the previous July 24-hour record of 1.45 inches. Average rainfall for the whole month of July is 1.17 inches.

Other July 24-hour records were set in Abbotsford, where 1.4 inches of rain fell, at Tofino, which recorded 4.45 inches, at Estevan Point with 4.06 inches and at Spring Island, where 2.83 inches of rain fell.

The weather office says a high-altitude flow of westerly winds is carrying weather systems across the Pacific from southern Japan. The systems are travelling in a straight line to beat down on the coast one after the other.

Pelting Rain, Armed Soldiers Cool Irish Tempers at Parade

BELFAST (Reuter) — Protestants paraded with banging drums and flapping banners in the traditional Orange Day marches throughout Northern Ireland today amid fears of renewed conflict.

The marches set off in an atmosphere charged by three more killings during the night. One of the victims was a Protestant youth shot down on a street in Portadown, 25 miles outside Belfast, and there was apprehension of a revenge blow by the Protestant para-military Ulster Defence Association.

As the marchers streamed through the heart of Belfast, under a steady rain, most of the city's Roman Catholic minority remained in their own district.

Some 17,000 British soldiers backed by 8,000 police and militia men stood guard in case of an assault on the marchers by the Roman Catholic-based Irish Republican Army.

In the present high state of tension authorities believed such an assault could blow up into full-scale conflict.

At several points in Belfast, groups of blue-jacketed club-carrying young men could be seen on the fringes of the procession. They described themselves as UDA commandos.

The rain doused some of the excitement customary on the Orange Day parades which are held to celebrate a triumph of Protestant arms in 1690 when Roman Catholic King James II was beaten by William of Orange at the Battle of Boyne.

As the marchers trudged through town, plastic raincoats obscured the dark coats and orange flashes which are a uniform of the Orange order. Rain dripped off bowler hats — another uniform requirement — and sodden banners hung heavy on their poles.

But the bandsmen pounded out Protestant tunes with gusto all along the five-mile march to a rallying point at Endenderry just outside Belfast.

NET SCOOPS STRAY FISH

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — An escaped prisoner from Collins Bay penitentiary was captured today when he walked into an intense search area 15 miles west of here where police were looking for nine of 14 prisoners who escaped from the maximum-security Millhaven prison Monday night.

Police said John Singleton, 30, left a labor gang Tuesday morning, but was caught today when he was spotted walking along CNR tracks two miles north of Millhaven.

Singleton was serving three years for fraud and parole revocation.

Hospital Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Despite a provincial law that forbids hospital workers to strike, the Canadian Union of General Employees, representing about 650 non-medical workers at Toronto Western Hospital, broke off contract talks today and set up picket lines.

Boyd McAulay, executive director of Toronto Western, said attempts will be made to transfer some of the 700 patients. Supervisory staff and some workers who did not strike would try to carry on with hospital duties.

The union represents kitchen staff, cleaners, nursing assistants and male orderlies.

Under the Ontario Hospital Disputes Act, it is illegal for hospital workers to strike and penalties can reach $1,000 a day for individuals and $10,000 a day for the union.

It is the second hospital strike in Toronto in two weeks. Workers at St. Joseph's Hospital staged a 10½-hour walkout June 28. A contract has since been signed and there were no charges against the workers.

New Talks Begin In IWA Conflict

Representatives of both sides in the coast woodworking industry contract dispute met today in Vancouver.

The move followed a decision by member companies of Forest Industrial Relations to postpone a ratification vote on a new contract with the International Woodworkers of America until after a number of local issues are resolved.

These local issues, involving 2,500 of the 28,000 coast loggers and millworkers, include a variety of matters, such as additional job rates, longshoring agreements and an end of piece-rates in at least one shingle mill, at individual companies.

John Billings, president of the Forest Industrial Relations, said terms and conditions of the tentative general agreement with the IWA "appeared to be acceptable" to the 115 companies FIR represents.

"However, because of a number of the operations had been pulled out of master negotiations by the International Woodworkers of America for the settlement of local issues, the industry representatives decided to postpone a formal ratification vote today," he said Tuesday.

Earlier, the IWA accepted the proposed settlement by 53 per cent with roughly half the members not voting. Picket lines, however, will remain in effect until the industry ratifies the new agreement. The new contract includes a wage increase of 73 cents an hour over two years plus fringe benefits. Base rate was $3.72.

This morning's meeting was requested by FIR.

LOUSY MUSICIAN BUT FINE BANDIT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It was a crazy mixed-up robbery, complete with musical accompaniment and a quick shuffle, but the robber had the last laugh.

Police suspect the robber capped off a string of four holdups in Hollywood and four in the San Fernando Valley all in one night — by sticking up the Studio City bar shortly after midnight Tuesday.

After forcing nine customers to lie on the floor, the bandit took over the bass drum, accompanying the regular entertainment, an organist.

One of the customers jumped up and ran out while the robber was busy with his bass. The bandit chased him and fired three shots, all of which missed.

Waiting for him outside was the robber, who took $290 and vanished again.

BUMPER CROP

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An experimental safety car devised by UCLA engineering student Dan Bell has bumpers filled with an edible material that cushions the impact of crashes.

Bell says the material is cheap, light, porous, readily available, requires no unusual skills to process, will withstand a 5-mile-per-hour crash without damage—and besides, in an emergency, can be eaten.

The wonder material? Popcorn.

Fischer Concedes

Fischer, in a hopeless position, resigned. He stood up, folded his score sheet and walked out of the Reykjavik Sports Palace.

The decision confirmed the judgment of the experts who considered Fischer was in a difficult position when the game was adjourned after 40 moves Tuesday night. The 40 moves were made in four hours and 34 minutes of play.

The victory gave Spassky a 1-0 lead in the 24-game match and an important psychological advantage. Fischer has never beaten Spassky. His winless streak against the Russian now stands at six games.

After the overnight adjournment, the game was resumed this afternoon.

Spassky's 41st move was written on a slip of paper, put in a sealed envelope at the close of play Tuesday night and given to chief referee Lothar Schmid of West Germany. Schmid ceremoniously opened the envelope today and made Spassky's move.

The two competitors, their seconds and chess enthusiasts throughout the world spent part of the overnight break analysing possibilities for the 11 pieces remaining on the green-and-white chessboard in Reykjavik's sports hall: king and five pawns for Fischer; king, bishop and three pawns for Spassky.

The match had appeared headed for a draw until Fischer tried to seize the initiative on his 29th move.

The lanky challenger galloped his bishop down a long black diagonal to snatch an unprotected pawn Spassky had offered. A few moves later the bishop was trapped and lost in exchange for two pawns.

Analysing the game for The Associated Press, international grandmaster Isaac Kashdan termed Fischer's move "a rare miscalculation by the American genius."
